Wants To Know Where He Lives

John Corn, address unknown, poses in the sheriff's office for the picture he hopes will lead to his return to the home of his grandmother, somewhere in the Mansfield area from which he wandered away yesterday.

Sheriff's Deputies Hunting Relatives Of 'Mystery Boy'

By VIRGINIA LEE

Eight-year-old Johnny Corn wandered away from his grandmother's home "somewhere near Mansfield" yesterday morning and he was still "lost" today while Richland county deputy sheriffs started a far flung search for his relatives.

John's an orphan and he arrived in Mansfield by bus two days ago. He isn't sure just where he came from but he does know that Grandmother was there to meet him at the bus station and that she took him to her farm. And just where the farm's located is some thing else that Johnny doesn't know about.

Right now he's at the Salvation Army detention home, waiting patiently for county officers to find his home.

His clothing soaked by yesterday's rain, a bewildered and hungry Johnny found his way to the home of C. F. Hoffman, Oak street road, at 9:30 last night.

He climbed out of a window at his grandmother's home "to go outside and play," and after walking along the railroad tracks he became lost he told the Hoffmans. He was unable to tell from which direction he had been walking.

The Hoffmans fed him and engaged him in a checker game pending arrival of authorities whom they notified.

"I came to live with my grandmother, Anna Hoyer, who works in a restaurant,' the boy told officers," but I lost her house."

And that briefly, is all that officers have to go on in their search for his relatives.

The child said his parents "died a long time ago" and that he has neither brothers nor sisters. He

'RICK' CALLS FOR 11-POINT LABOR SET-UP

Offers Definite Legislative Plan To Outlaw Strikes, Ban Overtime Pay.

HITS AT LABOR ATTACKS

Denies Enmity Toward Unions, Declares It's Time Soldiers Get a Break.

By DON LINDSAY
(News-Journal Managing Editor)

COLUMBUS Talking with outspoken directness, Capt Eddie V. Rickenbacker, native son of Columbus, laid before the Ohio assembly last night a suggested legislative program calling for outlawing of strikes, abolition of overtime and double-time pay for the duration, a 48-hour week throughout the nation and strict regulation of unions

No orator, Rickenbacker nevertheless spoke with deep earnestness, and with blunt directness

He denied in ringing words, that he was an enemy of labor as he has been branded, and just as ringingly made it plain that he was speaking for the soldiers at the front.

"I have been accused of pretending to speak for the soldiers at the front," Rickenbacker said. "God knows it's about time someont started speaking for them. Pretend to speak? Ladies and gentlemen, there is no pretense about it."

Rickenbacker repeated some of his statements made in previous speeches, but this was the first time he had addressed a joint assembly session, and it was the first time he had proposed a definite legislative program

Making it plain that he did not seek to foster any regulations that would encroach on the right of labor to organize or bargain collectively, Rickenbacker offered an 11-point program.

His proposal came within 24 hours of a session of the house judiciary committee, scheduled to meet tonight, to consider a bill that embodies many of the proposals offered by Rickenbacker.

Mixed reactions were noted among members of both house and senate—with caution perhaps the outstanding one. Most

Hitler, Duce Discuss Headaches

Here's start of that four-day parley "somewhere in Germany" between German Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, right, and Italian Duce Benito Mussolini, in which they discussed the imminent threat of an Allied invasion of continental Europe. High ranking Nazi and Fascists, as well as military leaders, attended the conference. Picture was received in Sweden, radioed to the U. S.

Australia and Alaska Faced By Jap Threat

New Bases Bared As Allies Bag 37 Planes In Moresby Raid.

(By Associated Press)

Ominous Japanese threats to Australia and Alaska were disclosed today even as Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced that Allied fliers had won a smashing new victory in the southwest Pacific skies with the destruction of 37 out of 100 enemy planes over Port Moresby New Guinea.

Japan's menacing actions were outlined at far ends of the Pacific war theater:

In Australia, Gen Sir Thomas A Blamey, commander-in-chief of Allied ground forces under Gen. MacArthur warned the Japanese had massed 200,000 first-line troops in island bases above Australia and could be expected to launch a new offensive at any moment.

At a U. S. base off Alaska, it was announced despite violent American bombing and naval assaults, the Japanese are building a string of stepping-stone air bases from Tokyo toward Alaska which even fighter planes could span.

American 11th Bomber Command headquarters said the Japanese were making steady progress in constructing a half-mile runway at Kiska which might be ready for fighter planes before Easter.

It also was announced the Japanese are building a long bomber field at Attu, westernmost of the Aleutians, 195 miles from Kiska and only 735 miles from the northernmost Japanese island base at Paramushiro.

Dispatches from the far north said the perennial fog shrouding the Aleutians was playing a major role in helping enemy ships run the gauntlet to their island bases despite vigilant scouting by U. S fliers and warships.

In the southwest Pacific, the Allied air victory at Port Moresby boosted the two day total of enemy planes destroyed to 76 and Yanks, British In Swift Pursuit Of Axis North Of Sousse.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—Allied armies in Tunisia are advancing all along the line in pursuit of Marshal Erwin Rommel's Africa corps north of Sousse and northeast of Kairouan, the Allied headquarters communique said today.

(The Algiers radio, in a broadcast heard in London by Reuters, said that General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth army advance guards had reached Enfidaville, 27 miles north of Sousse, and that practically the whole of an Italian division had been captured.

(London sources said that the Axis armies withdrawing into the Tunisian tip totalled about 210,000 men, including 150,000 Germans, with three-fourths of Rommel's army seasoned veterans.

(The Vichy radio, German-controlled, said that Rommel had been reinforced by air in the last few days with both men and weapons.

(The Italian communique, broadcast by the Rome radio and recorded by the Associated Press, acknowledged that 60 dead and 124 injured were left in Allied raids on Italy and Italian islands.)

Patrols from both the Eighth army and the First army are pushing forward north between the coast and the hills, and French forces continue to press forward in the hills to the east of the Ousseltia plain, the war bulletin said.

In the air, Allied fliers continued to pound enemy bases and airdromes, scoring hits yesterday on docks and shipping at Bizerte; on a tanker and barges at Trapani, in Sicily, and on an enemy airfield at Ste Marie du Zit, it was announced.

The Ste. Marie du Zit airfield first was attacked Sunday night

ASKS RENEWAL OF TRADE PACT

Jones Contends Agreements Helped Restore Trade Lost In Depression.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON Crediting reciprocal trade agreements with recovering more than half of the foreign trade America lost in the depression, Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones today asked congress to renew the program, contending that failure to do so might be regarded by our allies "as a definite step toward isolation."

Testifying before the house ways and means committee which is considering legislation to extend the reciprocal trade act for another three years, Jones decried trade barriers of the past and warned that they must not be allowed to rise again after conclusion of the present war.

I am convinced,' said Jones, 'that failure to extend the trade agreement at this time might be regarded by friendly countries, free and occupied, as a definite step toward isolation, a policy followed by the United States and

HYSTERICAL: British Given Tumultuous Welcome In Sfax

By DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY AT SFAX, April 10—(Delayed)—(AP)—The hysterically happy populace of this city, freed from German control, threw aside all restraint in giving the triumphant British Eighth army a tumultuous welcome today

Never in the almost 2,000-mile march across Africa has this correspondent seen anything like the joyous abandon which seized the people when British tanks and troops rolled through the outskirts giving chase to Rommel's retreating Africa corps, which fled from here in darkness this morning

Men, women and children strewed the army's path with flowers Crowds cheered and applauded for hours as armored trucks poured northward

French, Greeks, Maltese and Jews embraced and kissed the troops and correspondents traveling with the army. American, British and French flags hidden from the enemy fluttered along the route of march.

Today it did not matter so much that once beautiful Sfax was a torn, mauled, dirty, heartbreaking mass of shattered buildings blasted by five months of Allied air bombardment. For there were smiles and laughs in the eyes and faces of a people bitterly weary of enemy domination and cruelty.

There apparently was no resentment that British and American planes had battered the city from the air and forced the entire European population—some 50,000—to seek refuge in suburban homes.

In the harbor hulks of several ships showed above the water, and in the railroad yard was the wreckage of locomotives and cars which the enemy once used to haul supplies to Rommel's army.

'Win War For All Americans', Plea Sounded At Labor Rally

"Win the war" policies of the CIO-AFL Public Affairs committee were outlined to more than 1,000 members of Mansfield unions and their guests last night at a labor rally in the Park theater.

The policies were discussed by nationally-known labor speakers and representatives from local unions. It was the first in a series of such rallies planned by the public affairs committee, Philip Schwaner, chairman, said.

"We want to win the war—not for labor but for all Americans," Russ Nixon, Washington representative of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, said, adding that "it is in this light that we discuss the reactionary offensive against the war effort.

"We are against these forces that prevent full mobilization, against, if you please, those who would fight a long war-of-convenience for private gain," Nixon declared as he launched into a discussion of the five-point policies program endorsed by the committee.

"Our obligation is that of production." Nixon stressed, "and to attain this end our joint unions proposed that we take the offensive against the enemies of this country by opening a western front in Europe, that rising prices be halted by all-out price control; that all essential goods be rationed in a democratic way and that a fair tax program be enacted with repeal of gross tax on wages so that the major burden of taxation will be carried by those most able to pay, and that there be a more democratic han-

BALANCE: Churchill Reports Allies Hold Own Against Subs

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Churchill reiterated in the house of commons today "we are more than holding our own" in the Atlantic battle against Germany's U-boats.

The prime minister was asked by the Laborite Emanuel Shinwell if he had any comment on the statement of Frank Knox, U. S. secretary of the navy, about heavy shipping losses in March.

He replied: "My attention has been drawn to this statement. I agree with Colonel Knox that results of the U-boat warfare are serious, as they always must be. His statement, however, refers to a limited period following one in which sinkings were comparatively small.

"Viewing the battle against the U-boat as a whole I can repeat my previous assurance that we are more than holding our own."

The Berlin radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, reported a special announcement from Adolf Hitler's headquarters asserting that U-boats attacked a heavily-loaded Allied convoy in the North Atlantic on the way to England

"In this action as well as in single attacks in the Caribbean and off the South African coast they sank 21 ships totaling 138,500 tons and torpedoed six more ships," the announcement said.

Helps Child's Morale In Time of War

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Following a public forum with mothers, recently, in which we were discussing children in relation to the war, a brave young, mother of two children, four and two, told me this: "My husband is somewhere in the Pacific. When he was about to enter the service, we wondered how we might inform the older child of the fact without too much harm to him emotionally. When at last we screwed up our courage to tell him, he replied, 'Dad, you will make a fine sojer'." The mother added, "This has helped the father and me more than anything we could imagine."

While there is no word to describe our hatred of war, we are in it. We must win it or be destroyed by it together with everything we have held dear. Our problem now is to win this war with the least possible cost in lives, limbs and heartaches.

Only a part of the suffering from this war is physical. A still larger portion consists of heartaches, and among the keenest sufferers are our children.

We parents pretty largely determine the extent and severity of this suffering by the children through our attitude and show of emotions. If we constantly express fear and anxiety over the matter and dwell long and often on it, our children will. If, on the other hand, we discipline ourselves in self-control and courage and try to keep our attention on our hopes instead of our fears, our children will do so.

We parents gain comfort in knowing that by far most of our boys will return alive, sound and whole to carry on in rebuilding this war-torn world and continuing to further their education and develop their personal resources.

From the windows of houses out of which have gone a member of the family to defend us and our liberties appear stars. Wives and mothers wear service pins.

Now why should not the boy or girl who has a father or big brother in the Service also wear a star? See what this would do to ease the heartaches of children by substituting for their sorrows a genuine pride and enthusiasm over what it signifies.

Here Is How To Slenderize Your Waistline

Extra inches that come to the midsection of the woman who is inclined to take on flesh are insidious in their methods. It may be only a fourth of an inch one year, then half an inch the next. No woman should tolerate this figure wrecker. She got it through unwise eating habits, stowing away calories that could not be used up because of lack of exercise. She can get rid of it, take on the more youthful outline. But she'll have to work, and she will also have to turn away her eyes when the sweets are offered.

It is pretty sad not to have a waistline. It is tragic to have a roll of fat just below the breasts that gives the body any ugly forward bulge. If this is your unhappy fate, let us suggest an exercise that will cause the fat cells to evaporate through muscle activity. Until middle age is upon one, weakened muscles can be strengthened. Start now. Don't delay. Adipose tissue does not dissolve of its own accord. Don't keep on feeding it. Its favorite food elements are starches, sweets and fats.

Allow yourself one half pat of butter with each meal, no more. Take tea and coffee clear.

Before beginning your quest for slenderness, take careful measurements of bust, hips and waist line. The tape measure gives a clearer record of figure conditions than the scale, especially if excess flesh is localized.

Make up your mind that you will persevere. The stop and go system won't get you very far along the good looks road. We need exercise anyway, for the good of our inner sides. It helps the digestive motors to function, aids circulation, is refreshing and nothing to the nervous system.

There will be no change for several weeks. Fat cells are petty solid substance. But by the end of five or six weeks, the tape measure will give an encouraging report.

Stand erect, stretching the body as high as ever you can, as if you were trying to tear yourself apart at the waistline. Lift the right arm, curve it over your head, as if you were trying to touch your left shoulder. At the same time stretch the left arm downward and touch your knees if you can.

Back to first position. Relax. Take a deep breath, repeat the movements. Six times with the right arm, six with the left and so on.

To maintain balance it will be necessary to have the feet somewhat apart. You will be conscious of strong pull on the muscles at the sides of the body; that's what does the business.

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T BUILD ENTRIES

Covering the lead of an honor from the dummy can be just what the declarer wants you to do, especially if the faced hand contains none too many entries. Putting your king on a queen or your queen on a jack, only to get it killed off in the declarer's hand, may then clear the whole situation for him and make the rest of his work easy. Let it be repeated—don't cover an honor led from the dummy until after you have figured out the various possibilities of the situation.

Pass	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠

South took the opening club J with his A, went to dummy with his heart A and led the spade Q. East covered with the K and got it felled by the A. The spade 4 to the J made an entry to finesse against the heart Q, the 10 winning. Trying what seemed like his only chance to make the contract, South now laid down the heart K, and it dropped the Q, setting up the dummy's thirteener. To the dummy he went then with the spade 5 to the 8, and the heart J afforded a discard of the diamond 2. This left only one diamond loser and two club losers in his hand, so he scored his game.

If East had not covered that spade Q on the third trick, when it was led from the dummy, South would have needed another spade lead from there to trap the K. When East covered that, South would have had to come up with the A. This would have left him only one trumph re-entry to dummy. If he used it to finesse the heart 10, and then used the heart K to drop the Q, he would have had no way to get back into the dummy so as to use the heart J. Consequently, he could not have discarded a diamond or club on that card, and hence would have had to take two losers in each minor suit, setting him.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

For a moment I stared at Hal Meredith blankly, as I comprehended what he had said, and recognized only too surely what must lie behind it, then found voice to answer his question.

"Not direct blackmail, no," I said, "but there is a woman—fiend would be the better name for her—who has threatened Katharine, and who is a direct menace not only to Katharine but to Jack Bickett."

"Madge!" He sprang to his feet excitedly, his errand for the moment forgotten. "Do you mean that Katharine's husband has come back to her, and that they have been reconciled?"

I turned my eyes away from the suffering in his, with which was mingled brave determination to bid his lost love Godspeed if happiness should have come back to her, for I could not bear to look at the revelation.

"I am sorry, Hal, for having been so abrupt," I told him. "I forgot that you did not know what has happened recently. Yes, Jack has come back to this country, but he has not seen Katharine yet."

"Does she know he is here?" he asked hoarsely.

"Yes, she does," I told him.

"Then why has she not seen him?" he demanded. "Is he still keeping her stretched upon the rack of his moodiness and his neglect? Look here, Madge! I promised her I'd give her up and stay away, because she felt that she must be loyal to Jack. But by the Eternal, if he is still keeping up his infernal treatment of her, I'm going to take her away from him."

A Gallant Knight.

If I had not learned of the tragedy of misunderstanding which the lies and treachery of Ruth Hayes had built between Jack and Katharine, and which I had been able to clear up for both of them, though they had not seen each other, I could have wished that Katharine had seen this lover of her youth as he uttered his romantic vow.

Hal is middle-aged now, but despite his slight limp resulting from a terrible air accident, he retains his lithe figure, his handsome face, his kind merry eyes and his debonair charm of manner. He embodies a woman's ideal of a gallant knight, and to me it seemed a tragedy that his deep lifelong love for Katharine must end in frustration.

But my fealty had been pledged to my brother-cousin since I had learned that he never had ceased to love Katharine, and I steeled myself to tell Hal Meredith the things which would deal a death blow to his resurrected hope.

"Sit down, Hal," I said quietly, "and before you tell me anything further of your errand, let me bring you up to date on what has happened to Jack and Katharine. Can you listen quietly?"

"I promise not to interrupt you," he said, and I sketched rapidly Jack's journey to the United States, with the robbery of his papers by Ruth Hayes, his taking sanctuary with Professor Diswell who was deciphering certain cryptograms for him, the trip I had taken in the armored car with my father's guards to Diswell's home, and our rescue of Diswell and his mysterious helper "Charles" from the gangsters.

I then told him of my discovery that "Charles" was really Jack, and of the revelation which had come to Jack and me, after we had compared notes, that Ruth Hayes had suppressed the letters of both Jack and Katharine, and had lied and schemed unceasingly to make Katharine believe she had won Jack away from her, and to convince Jack that Katharine would marry Hal as soon as she could divorce Jack.

"Each has exonerated the other," I said, "and although they have not seen each other, I may safely say that they are reconciled and ready to take up a new life together, whenever it is safe for Jack to come out of hiding."

STUDY DEHYDRATION

BERKELEY, Cal. —(U.P.)— The war has so intensified the demand for dehydrated fruits, milk, vegetables and other foodstuffs that the University of California has added courses in dehydration. N THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper /ASHINGTON—Some may wonder why the newspapers are concerned over the wish of esident Roosevelt to keep the first big United tions conference closed against the press.

It is a conference concerning food, and a conerable portion of the work will be technical d of comparatively little general interest.

I myself do not expect to report the conference or even be in the country when it is held. Yet I am very much concerned over the attempt President Roosevelt has made to exclude the press from all contact with representatives at this conference.

Clapper

I am concerned about it because I hope there will be many United Nations conferences and I want the people to know about them and to share in them. I hope that nations will be meeting in this way for generations come. I hope the people of all countries will e more and more control over their governnts. I hope we are to have an increasingly nocratic world, and that the nations of this nocratic world will solve their problems meet- together in friendly conference and not ever in try to solve them by the method of mass rder that has been resorted to up to now.

If the people of all countries—and I think this olies unquestionably in Germany and Italy and haps in Japan—could have had their way there uld have been no war this time.

This week we are paying honor to the memory our patron saint of democracy, Thomas Jeffer-. He believed that laws and institutions must hand in hand with the progress of the human nd. But always the strength of society, in his lgment, rested in the heart of the people, in ceptance of the decisions of the majority, in edom of religion, the press, freedom of discuss-n, and in the preservation of civil rights.

In the preservation of all this nothing is more ic than free discussion. And the press is one the principal agencies of free discussion.

There is no military reason why the press uld not have free access to the first United tions conference, which is to open May 18 at t Springs, Va. Yet President Roosevelt by his n personal direction, against the earnest protest Elmer Davis of OWI and of others in the government, has persisted in ordering arrangements that will treat newspaper and radio representatives—who after all are merely eyes and ears for the American people—like moral lepers.

They are to be excluded from any contact with delegates. A newspaper man who takes his work seriously considers that he is honor bound to learn as much and report as much about public affairs as is possible. He makes only one reservation and that is that he must be guided at all times by the requirements of national security. Yet newspaper men are to be denied access to the hotel where the United Nations conference is meeting and where the delegates will live.

Thomas Jefferson once said that if a people had to be without newspapers or without government they would do better without government.

But a democratic people needs both. Certainly good government needs good newspapers.

Mr. Roosevelt thinks of the press as a nuisance, or as an irritation, or as offering a medium through which mischief might be done during the United Nations food conference.

A totally irresponsible and malicious press could do perhaps fatal damage. But the American press and the British press have shown that they are not as a whole either irresponsible or malicious.

Surely Mr. Roosevelt does not think the press should omit all comment on the work of the United Nations food conference. But such comment must be based on independent newspaper reporting at Hot Springs itself. What confidence can be inspired and what useful comment can be made on the basis of official communiques alone? The very thought of it is absurd to any newspaper man who knows how communiques are written and how little is said in them. We know how they are doctored and how they must be devitalized to cover up even healthy and moderate differences of opinion. Only saps believe that official communiques tell the whole truth.

If the press is to be thrown out into the gutter at the first United Nations conference in Hot Springs the press may as well prepare to be similarly parked at future United Nations conferences where more difficult questions will be discussed.

I have never thought Mr. Roosevelt had any designs against the press. I do not know now that he has. I do think he is terribly mistaken in his judgment this time and is insisting upon a precedent that might, as time goes on, easily become a most vicious menace to free discussion in America.

CALLS FOR END TO RESTRICTIVE TARIFF WALLS

Sen. George Sees Lowering of Barriers Necessary To Post-War Recovery.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Chairman Walter F. George, (D., Ga.) of the senate's special post-war economic planning committee called today for elimination of restrictive tariff barriers to give impetus to greater world prosperity at the end of the war.

George, whose committee will study tariff rates as one of the basic points affecting domestic and international economics, told the United Press in an interview that elimination of such barriers would be vital in rehabilitation of war-devastated areas.

He disagreed with a recent prediction of Premier Adelard Godbout of Quebec that rehabilitation will bring about a short buying spurt, followed by a reduction as such areas reach productive capacity.

George denied that an immediate post-war buying spurt need necessarily be followed by a decline.

"The sooner such areas are rehabilitated to production," he said, "the greater will be the aggregate purchasing power of the world.

"If such purchasing power is turned loose in a world trade that is unfettered by restrictive trade barriers, it will tend toward a greater world prosperity and generally raise the world standard of living. The process of rehabilitation and rebuilding is not one of division, but one of multiplication so far as the general welfare of the world is concerned.

"While rehabilitation efforts may satisfy the immediate needs, the long view is to enable such rehabilitated areas to take their places in the world trade. A necessary precondition is to constantly strive to eliminate unwise restrictions that prevent a free flow of trade."

George said he did not necessary mean "free trade" without tariffs of any description but a move toward more liberal trade basis.

"Our great misfortune," he said, "has been that when one starts to think of protection of home markets against all outside competition the result has been extreme tariff walls. Equally unfortunate would be a free trade lacking in any regulation whatever."

WAR TO CHANGE MEN, INDUSTRY FOREMEN TOLD

Those In Service Will Come Back With Challenge For Civilian Life.

Men must change with industry and science to be ready for a new type of civilization after the war, members of the Mansfield-Shelby Foremen's club were told last night at their monthly dinner session at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Addressing the group was A. C. Horricks, Akron, assistant to the president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company.

"There will be new models of men as well as machinery in the post-war era," he said. "The training millions of fighting men are receiving in warfare and under all conditions will take care of that.

"The fellows who will come back will be full of confidence and they will be in the habit of making lightning decisions. They are doing that now in Africa and the Pacific, and they must make the right decisions or they won't come back.

"You men in industry had better begin thinking of that now before they get back so you'll be ready to accept them and meet their challenge in civilian life," Horricks said.

He predicted a vast world market for American goods, saying that all of North and South America will be our customers and next-door neighbors. Already, in the United States alone, there is a need for five and a half million new cars and there will be a corresponding demand for other commodities, including household appliances such as Mansfield industries can produce.

"There will be an opportunity to serve the world. Our men overseas are doing a good job of selling America and her advantages and those people will look to us for leadership and goods for rebuilding when the war's over," the Akron man added.

"Industry is undergoing a continual change and the men who are ready to accept it will be the leaders after the war. For instance, we will have an excess of magnesium, aluminum, and plastics to play with. They will go into making of our new models of transportation facilities and household appliances.

"Don't let anybody tell you we'll divide what we have with the rest of the world," he continued. "We have grown great by multiplying our assets, not dividing them."

Horricks was introduced by Verne Kyle, club president. Nels Blocker's orchestra provided dinner music.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

eaking For Myself.

OW that the initial controversy has died down and the issue has been settled by Rocky unt's draft board down in North Carolina, I uld like to put in two or three cents worth of nion on the Kay Kyser matter. Actually it is my own two or three cents worth; it belongs a lot of fellows who are already in khaki, but y seem to feel so strongly—and almost unanimously—on the subject that I think their views ought to be passed along.

Kilgallen

Most of the civilians I know saw no reason why Kay Kyser shouldn't be drafted, in fact those with sons or brothers in service made comments like "Why not? Our Joe is in Tunisia—is he any better than Joe?" But talk to the boys in uniform and you get a surprisingly different reaction. Most of the boys in uniform are quite lent in their disapproval of the Rocky Mount ft board decision.

A young lieutenant in the army, who has been und quite a bit both in the army and in the w world, was practically non-stoppish on the ject the other night he was so anxious to get oss the soldier's viewpoint. As a civilian, he l never been closer to Kay Kyser than the tance between a loge seat and the stage of the and theater but as a fighting man he was convinced that Kay Kyser as a bandleader in mufti could do infinitely more for the war effort than Kay Kyser in olive drab.

What he meant, he explained, was this. As a soldier, Kay Kyser is without his band, his national hook-up and the props that made him famous. As Kay Kyser the Old Professor he has the glamour and audience-appeal and humor nostalgic of old civilian days that the soldier boys devour. The draft board is separating him from that.

Certainly it is immaterial whether the ordinary citizens misses Kay Kyser's entertainment or not. But we're worrying about the fighting men now. The lonesome private in Arkansas won't hear him any more on the radio Wednesday nights, the hepcat sergeant in Wyoming won't be able to get the Kyser record of the newest hit songs. They're going to miss him. Of course, they're still better off than Joe over in Tunisia—but there's a good chance that in a month or so, they'll be in Tunisia, too. Or some place like it.

And what, as a soldier, will Kyser be doing? Not killing Germans or Japs, you can bet that, because he is way past what seems to be the best killing age, and those eyeglasses he wears are no gag. Chances are he will spend the war years at a desk totting up figures, if he can tot, or leading a camp orchestra. That will delight the boys in his camp, but is will be small comfort to some two million of other fans in uniform. Which is a mistake if you are taking the long view of the war effort. Anyway, that's what the doughboys say. And I listen to doughboys. They are the important people of this generation.

MORE GET JOBS

Employe Placements 3 Times More In March This Year.

The Mansfield office of the U. S. employment service placed nearly three times as many workers in jobs last month as in March, 1942, and most of them went into Mansfield industries, C. W. Handley, manager, said today.

With Chamber of Commerce figures showing a steadily climbing industrial payroll in the city since the first of the year, 641 workers were placed in jobs last month as compared with only 230 in March, 1942.

The demand for certain types of skilled workers has increased so rapidly in recent weeks, Handley said, that the Mansfield employment office has standing orders for them.

Mansfield war plants need aircraft assemblers, molders, core makers, foundry laborers, inspectors, blueprint readers, and clerical workers, Handley said.

"We have a fair registration of women now, but we need many more men," Handley said, "and to get enough men workers to meet the demand we must have workers who are now in non-essential jobs."

HUNTED FOR TWO NEW BAD CHECKS

Paper Tendered By Soldier Bounces Back 3 Times, Police Are Told.

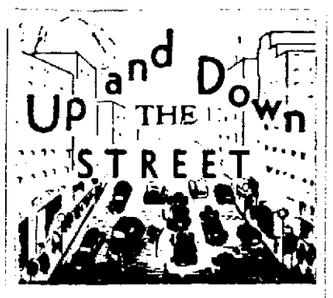
Mansfield police had two more reasons today for wanting to locate a soldier who overstayed his leave in the city and then disappeared Saturday when checks he wrote began to come back to the business men who cashed them.

Two more checks he cashed last week at Mansfield business places had showed up today, marked "no account with this bank." One was issued on the Farmers Savings and Trust company and the other on the Mansfield Savings and Trust National bank.

The first of three checks police have heard about so far was cashed several days ago by the Mayer Drug store at Sixth and Main streets. The soldier cashed the others at the Bazley market and the "36" Bar. Each was for $15.

All of the checks were written to Richard Hall, and signed and endorsed by him. Business men, who described the soldier as medium height and about 25 years old, said he had scars across his nose and cheek.

Officers learned that he had told friends in the city last week that he stayed away from camp too long and needed money to get back.



Like "pennies from Heaven" a check for five dollars came to the Community Chest office today in payment of a pledge made in 1939. When the family that had made the pledge moved from Mansfield in 1941 the account was closed. Now several years later the payment is made along with a note saying, "This is a little late but we think you may be able to find some use for it."

Paul Herbert Eliot, who like Thomas Jefferson has a birthday anniversary today has three birthday bonds. Last year when he was about two hours old, Papa Paul M. Eliot, county war bond chairman, bought his first one. Today he bought two—one for each year. With the avowed intention of buying bonds each birthday for every year of his son's age, is it any wonder Papa Eliot has an added reason for hoping the war won't last long?

Navy regulations haven't changed much since the first World war, but the same articles of equipment are considerably higher now, Police Capt. Jess Schwab and Neil Ruhl, two former navy men, have agreed. Capt. Schwab, who served during the last war, said his wool blanket cost him $6, while Ruhl, who was honorably discharged recently because of his health, said he paid $8 for virtually the same article. "Those navy towels are made of good stuff," Schwab recalled. "The ones I got 24 years ago are just wearing out."

ESCAPER SHOT, SUSPECT HELD

Unnamed Convict Linked To Attempt of Man To Get Over Prison Wall.

COLUMBUS—(NS)—A suspected accomplice in the unsuccessful attempt of Paul Westerfield, 25, of Cincinnati, to break out of Ohio penitentiary last night, was grilled today by prison authorities.

The suspect, whose name was withheld because his guilt had not been established, is believed to have given Westerfield the heavy metal hook which the latter tried in vain to hurl over the west wall.

To the hook was attached 24 feet of rope improvised from shirting, but instead of skirting the wall it became entangled in an electric wire, attracting the attention of two tower guards who opened fire.

Westerfield was wounded in the lower right leg by buckshot and removed to the prison hospital under guard. He had been assigned to the night woolen mill shift, and when the men went off duty, sneaked out a rear door and ran for the wall.

He was received at the penitentiary on Feb. 11, 1941 to serve concurrent sentences of one-to-20 years for autho theft, possessing concealed weapons and housebreaking.

Warden Henderson said Westerfield probably had an accomplice as he had no opportunity to make the hook and rope himself.

N HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

OLLYWOOD—Margo began life as a Mexican who knew nothing about Mexico. Now she is American whose greatest career is promoting in America.

Confusing? Everything about Margo is. Nothever happens to her in the normal way.

We'd better start at the beginning:

Her father was Spanish. Her mother was Irish. She was born in Mexico. Therefore, she was a Mexican.

Coons

Her original name was Maria Margarita Guadalupe Teresa Estela Bolado y Castilla. Even her family thought it was simpler to call her "Margo."

She came to this country when she was three, started dancing as soon as she walked, and went to public schools in Los Angeles.

Her formal dancing training was under Eduardo Cansino, father of Rita Hayworth, and then of the greatest teachers in the world. She s a professional at 12 (though the authorities n't know it), and was a member of a movie rus at 13. Jobs came thick and fast. At 14, was offered a solo spot at the Waldorf-Astoria New York.

Margo stayed at the Waldorf nearly two years, ing which time she also played with Claude ns in "Crime Without Passion." Hollywood her in that, yelled via telegraph, and she made umba" with Lombard and Raft and "Robin od of Eldorado" with Warner Baxter.

At this point, she received a wire from Oscar Serlin: "I am sending you a play written by Maxwell Anderson to star Burgess Meredith. We know you have never acted on a stage, but we want you to read it."

The play was "Winterset." Margo was sensational in it.

The picture version followed, then more dancing, and singing with Xavier Cugat's band on the radio.

Margo is not yet 25! She did "Winterset" when she was 17.

Two years ago, she went to Mexico for the first time that she could remember. She talked to schoolboys, diplomats, artists, statesmen.

She came back with the desire to help that country in its fight for modernization. Since then, she has played 18 months of roles for the CBS Overseas Division, the Rockefeller Committee, and various domestic shows. For this work, she has received either nothing at all or the lowest salary possible under the radio union.

And though she's now in Hollywood making a picture, she has no thought of giving up this work. She will broadcast to Latin America from California, if she can.

Margo lives with a secretary in an apartment. She wears brilliant clothes, loves mad color combinations, seldom wears slacks. She adores nearly every kind of music and home-cooked Mexican food.

She has a wide face, enormous blue-grey eyes, and a dancer's figure. She usually wears very high heels because she is only five feet four inches tall. She loves gold jewelry.

She is now an American citizen. But she started out as a Mexican who knew nothing about Mexico. And that's where we came in.

Senate Committee O.K.'s Out-Of-County Airport Work.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The senate political subdivision committee today recommended for passage a bill by Sen. Robert Pollock (R-Stark) to authorize counties to construct and operate airports outside their borders.

Wildlife Harmed By Brush Fires, Sportsmen Warn

Burning off fields and woodlots creates an unnecessary fire hazard, damages the fertility of the land, and destroys young rabbits and cover for birds without bringing any benefits, Gordon H. Ensminger, president of the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association, reminded farmers today.

"Rabbits are nesting about this time of the year, and when fire spreads over a farm it kills every one of them," he said.

Besides the threat of forests, farm buildings, and fences, fire destroys wildlife cover and the vegetation that helps hold the soil during heavy rains, he added.

"Burning off land is the lazy man's way of getting rid of weeds and brush which should be raked and burned in piles," said Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger.

The fire chief warned property owners, particularly in the city area, not to start fires that could easily get out of control. Every spring firemen are kept busy heading off fires that started from a small blaze in the back yard or garden.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Since it is somewhat customary to commiserate with a guy who has set his sights high, and missed, I was doing that same with Art Hilborn of the Bissman Birdie Brands who threatened to take over the team leadership in the Inter-City bowling tournament, and didn't.

I watched them wind up a 994 first game Saturday night, and stood all through a 993 second game. And then I toddled back to the office to the Sunday paper grind. So I didn't see them roll the sad 800 and something with which they completed their series.

"If I had known you were the lucky cause of the wood we were getting, "Art declared, "I'd have made you stay at the alleys, and I'd have gone down and gotten out that Sunday sport page for you." Now what could be fairer than that?

That last game made a philosopher out of Art.

"We couldn't really expect any better than we got," said he, chewing a chunk of humble pie. "We hit our 940 average, and no team can count on bettering its average on any given occasion, not and call its shots.

"So I guess we should be satisfied."

Now there speaks a philosopher,
He's satisfied, I guess.
He never expected any more,
Is glad it wasn't less.

"You know," says Art, "every team that comes in here is weaker than it was a year ago.

"Most of them have lost good men, and those that haven't just aren't rolling the game they used to.

"The men are working harder and longer hours, and they have a lot on their minds these days. Bowling is just recreation now, not the most important thing in the world as it was before the war."

It took a war to do it, but at last I have found a bowling bug admit that his favorite sport is not the most important thing in the world.

This explains the dazed look I am wearing these days. Honestly I'm not naturally dopey. Just temporarily befuddled.

Now if I can get a golf bug to admit the same, I'll know the war has come to Mansfield.

Lou Worried Over Hurlers

Pitchers Need More Work In Exhibitions.

RICHMOND Ind.—(AP)—Manager Lou Boudreau was concerned about his pitchers today as the Cleveland Indians moved here for the third game of their series with the Cincinnati Reds.

Cancellation of yesterday's game at Fort Benjamin Harrison caused the Tribe pilot some anxiety as he feels his moundsmen need all the activity they can obtain.

Al Milnar and Mel Harder are the only hurlers who have worked as long a stretch as five innings in any one game, and the only others who have gone the four-inning route are Al Smith and Jim Bagby.

Boudreau wants each of these four to work a six-inning turn before returning to Cleveland Monday.

Bagby and Jack Salveson were chosen for pitching duty today with Bagby slated to go six or seven innings.

Coach Del Baker was left behind when the Indians left Indianapolis last night. Baker has been confined to his bed for a week with a severe case of influenza.

The Indians jump to Springfield, Dayton and Middletown O. before moving into Cincinnati for a pair of week-end games which will wind up the spring training season.

HURLERS PICKED

INDIANAPOLIS (INS)—Clyde Shoun of the Cincinnati Reds and Jim Bagby of the Cleveland Indians were named as starting pitchers when the two clubs line up today for a battle at Richmond Ind. The exhibition game scheduled for Fort Benjamin Harrison yesterday was postponed.

YANKS MEET BRAVES

NEW YORK—(INS)—Manager Joe McCarthy today will send his Yankees against Casey Stengel's Boston Braves following postponement of yesterday's contest.

Slide Rule New Hope Of Stable

Takes No. 1 Stall as Devil Cracks Up.

By CHARLES MOREY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—For most of the 11 months since he first came to the races, W. E. Boeing's Slide Rule has occupied the number Two barn in the Boeing stable, yielding the top slot to a flashier, showier stablemate, Devil's Thumb. Slide Rule was a double stake winner last fall but it was the Devil that the Boeing camp pitched its hopes high on for the $75,000 Kentucky Derby when the snows broke this spring.

Less than two weeks ago, while spinning through a five furlong workout at Belmont, the Devil came down with a dread quarter crack—an injury which will keep him on the shelf for 60 days. This caused Trainer Cecil Wilhelm to declare him out of the Derby.

Left as the principal Boeing hope, Slide Rule went to the post last week in the experimental handicap at Jamaica an uncertain factor in the Derby figures. True, he had worked fast. But was he ready for racing? And did he have the style and stamina demanded of a Derby horse?

The first question he answered with a brilliant late run between horses that carried him from fifth place at the 16th pole to a neck victory at the wire. The second will be answered Saturday when he meets Count Fleet, Blue Swords and Bosquet in the mile and one-sixteenth of the Wood Memorial.

Last year, as a two-year-old, the Boeing colt was a hard-runner at times and a disappointment at others. He was raced sparingly, being a chronic sufferer from weak ankles, although making his debut in May and racing until October. He made but nine starts and won three, including the Babylon handicap and Cowdin stakes.

Slide Rule was considered a second class colt until early in September when he surprised an aqueduct crowd by ripping home a neck winner in the Babylon to gain ranking as a top-flight juvenile.

A well-beaten fourth was his lot in the Belmont futurity and again in the Champagne. Then the Boeing youngster was retired for the season and was shipped to Aiken, S. C. where he spent the winter.

It's going to take a tough horse to stop Count Fleet in the Wood and again in the Derby. But it's just a little too early to count out a colt with the class and breeding of Slide Rule. His sire Snark was a good router and he may turn out to be one too. He'll have cool, cocky Conn McCreary in the saddle and if he can spring the upset of upsets at Churchill Downs he'll never have to play second fiddle to a stablemate again. Slide Rule is 10-to 1 in the winter book.

Streamline Diamond Show

Southern Loop Told To Speed Up Pastime.

By PHIL CLARKE

ATLANTA (AP)—Showman Joe Engel, head man of the Chattanooga baseball club who runs his team like a three-ring circus, thumbed idly through a brand new manual from Southern Association headquarters and grinned.

"Yes sir," spoke Joe. "This is the stuff.

"Why it's just what we need to pep up the old ball game. I guess you might call it the daily dozen, delay destroyers."

Engel referred to a set of twelve wartime instructions for players and umpires authored by veteran baseballer Billy Evans serving his first year as president of the association.

Baseball, believes Evans, needs speed and hustle. The 59-year-old former big league umpire, who also served several years as general manager of the Cleveland Indians, thinks it's the ump's job to help keep things rolling along and he says so in his manual.

* * *

Under the new rules, Southern Association umpires will fire new balls directly to the pitcher, rather than hand them to the catcher for round the infield tossing.

There will be no long conference at the home plate when umpires go on the diamond to start the game.

And even arguments will be streamlined. When there is a dispute over the umpire's decision, say the rules, no players other than those involved shall take part in the discussion. And when a pitcher is the last man out, retiring his side, he's to go directly to the pitching mound instead of returning to the bench.

* * *

Only the catcher and one infielder will be permitted to confer with a faltering hurler, and bench managers will have the right to go to the mound just once during an inning.

Both teams are to run to and from their positions with no visiting by players on the way.

PREACHER ROE GOES BACK TO RED BIRDS

PORTSMOUTH—(AP) The Columbus Red Birds' American association pitching staff was augmented by two lefthanded hurlers today.

Manager Nick Cullop announced acquisition of Elwin (Preacher) Roe and George Dockins, both southpaws from the parent St. Louis Cardinals of the National league. Roe, who was with the Red Birds last year, was sold outright.

Rowe Hits Comeback Trail Once More

Schoolboy Rowe . . . today and 10 years ago.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
(Central Press Sports Editor)

At the bottom of the list of pitchers on the official Philadelphia Phillies' roster recently issued is the name of Lynwood Thomas Rowe.

* * *

Rowe? Name sounds somewhat familiar but—. Oh, yes, "Schoolboy" Rowe. Thought that guy was washed up long ago. With the Phillies huh? Well, he's just another comebacker.

But "Schoolboy" Rowe isn't. At least from his showing in the training camp games Rowe may make another sensational comeback similar to the one he made in 1940 when he helped pitch the Tigers to another pennant. In his most recent appearance on the mound Schoolboy hurled no-hit ball and struck out four in three innings.

Once the talk of the baseball world Schoolboy has gone down hill until now he is a minor leaguer with the lowly Phillies seeking to make his latest comeback a success.

Rowe reached the top of the long baseball ladder in 1934 when he pitched sensationally, winning 16 consecutive games before being stopped on Aug. 29. Rowe led his club to the American league pennant that year and in the World series. In October, he added more honors.

In the series games of Oct. 4 that year, Rowe hurled seven and one-third innings, with only 22 batsmen facing him. He allowed no hits and no batsmen reached first base. Detroit won the game, 3 to 2, in 12 innings.

* * *

Rowe's famous line over the radio, "How'm I doin, Edna?" helped make him a colorful series headliner and on Oct. 11 after the series was over, Rowe and "Edna" Edna Mary Skinner, were married.

Detroit and baseball fans everywhere hailed Rowe.

Rowe continued his stellar hurling the next two years, winning 19 in 1935 and 19 more in 1936. Arm trouble plagued him the next year and he was sent back to Beaumont. Rowe returned to form with Beaumont winning 12 games and losing only two. He came back to Detroit and helped the club win the pennant in 1940.

Last year Rowe started the season with Detroit. He was sold to Brooklyn and wound up pitching for Montreal where he was grabbed by the Phillies.

Rowe is 31 years old and first came up to the Tigers from Beaumont in 1932.

NEEDS MORE PLAYERS

LANCASTER, Pa. (INS)—Bucky Harris was still looking for a shortstop, an infielder and an outfielder today as the Phils pulled up for a second day of rest. Harris announced that Schoolboy Rowe may have all his teeth removed to prevent a spreading infection.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The season is at hand for selecting this year's major league pennant winners, though we can't see what good it will do this year when the team you pick in April may be just a bunch of individuals in Uncle Sam's uniforms by October. . . . Why not just wait until the end of the season and then say, See, I told you so?". At any rate here's what this Dept. has to offer in the day of selections.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

To pick a winner just pick a Card.
They're full of pep and try so hard.
But never overlook the Dodgers,
A bunch of ancient, draft-free codgers.
The Reds rely on muscle magic
If they're not third, it will be tragic
The Giants, Pirates and Cubs come next.
As pennant contenders they're all hexed.
The Braves and Phillies are in the rear
With very little hope or cheer.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

The first-place vote goes to the Yanks,
As hard to stop as Sherman tanks.
Boston comes second, on a guess,
Because we like the Indians less.
Despite the ballyhoo for St. Looey
The Browns are fourth, and that's no hooey.
Then Tigers, White Sox, Senator, A's.
Who are lucky if in the league they stays.

Count Makes His First Start Today

NEW YORK—(UP)—Mrs. John Hertz's Count Fleet, 6-to-5 favorite for the Kentucky Derby, was an odds-on choice to win his first start of the season today in the $3,000 St. James purse at Jamaica.

The brown son of Reigh Count will be ridden by his regular jockey, Johnny Longden, over a mile and seventy yards as he receives his prep for Saturday's $20,000 Wood memorial. He will carry highweight of 122 pounds against seven rivals.

The only colt given a chance against the Hertz star is Belair stud's Bosset, carrying 113.

Famous Victory, and Four Freedoms will represent the Greentree stable while the other entrants, all outsiders, are Towser, Eurasian, Eye for Eye and Joe Burger.

Vandy Shows New Control

Dutch Master Also Has Stuff on Ball.

RICHMOND, Ind.—(AP)—The perennially good pitching staff of the Cincinnati Reds is looking better daily.

Manager Bill McKechnie is pleased with progress shown to date. Loss of Paul Derringer via trade to the Chicago Cubs has not been noticeable as three of the Red's "big four" chuck away in exhibition games with rare spring form.

Johnny Vander Meer, probable nominee for the season opener against the St. Louis Cardinals, is exhibiting better control and more "stuff" than at any other stage of his career with the Reds. "double no-hit" was the team's leading moundsman last year with 18 wins and 12 defeats.

Elmer Riddle hasn't allowed a run in 10 innings of pitching to date and ol' Ray Starr's exploits brand him as the amazing ol' man he was last year when he set the senior loop on fire as a 36-year-old rookie and won 15 games.

The fourth member of "the four," Bucky Walters, has been ailing with a sprained ankle suffered in the opening days of spring drills and has confined his workouts to fielding and batting sessions. Bucky will be around, though, in his usual capable fashion shortly after the opener, and there is no reason to believe he will not turn in his share of victories. Walters won 15 and dropped 14 last year.

Today Lefty Clyde Shoun, used largely in relief last year, will start against the Cleveland Indians in the third game of their spring series. Rookie Bob Malloy, promising youngster, will serve as a replacement, McKechnie indicated.

SOFTBALL MEETING SCHEDULED TOMORROW

Representatives of all softball teams in the city, and also of the public parks organizations, have been requested to attend a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. building tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock when prospects for league play this summer will be checked over and plans drawn up.

Ohio Boys Battle In Tourney

Cleveland Qualifies Six In Gloves Finals.

By BILL KING

BOSTON—(AP)—Critical oldtimers who have been observing amateur boxing hereabouts for as many as four decades today agreed that the youngsters now battling for medals in the national A. A. U.'s second wartime championship tournament are the best they have seen in years.

They based their opinions on the 51 bouts put on yesterday and last night by 83 hand-picked fisticuffers, as the field was reduced to 32 for tonight's semi-final round.

The service men appeared better trained than the usual tyros and many of the civilian entries.

When the first night's glove-swinging ceased, Cleveland's well-balanced team, which qualified all but one of its seven members, shared the top honors with nine service men, seven from the army and one each from the Marine corps and Navy.

Among the 32 survivors were three of last year's winners, two of whom are title defenders, Samson Powell of Cleveland, in the 160-pound division, and Bob Fox

Ashland Warden Warns Owners To Keep Dogs Tagged

ASHLAND — Dog licenses belong on dogs, not in their owners' pockets, Carl W. Koegler, Ashland county dog warden reminded dog owners today after learning that many owners who have obtained licenses for their dogs have neglected to place them on the animals.

Due to rabies prevalent in the state, it is important that all dogs wear their licenses for rabid dogs can travel great distances and it is necessary, for purposes of control, to know from where they come, Koegler pointed out.

The dog warden further warned owners that they must keep their dogs confined to home premises. Several complaints have been received concerning dogs running at large, he said.

said, that the defendants agreed between March 5 and March 10 to withdraw their advertising from the New York Times unless the newspaper canceled a rate increase scheduled to become effective May 7. The withdrawal was part of a concerted effort established through meetings of the association, the acting attorney general said. The stores had suggested that instead of increasing advertising rates, the Times increase the price of its daily paper to five cents and of its Sunday edition to 15 cents, which the Times refused to do.

Fahy said the information charged that the action of the association and its members "deprived readers of the Times of access to information on merchandise available to the public at principal department stores in New York City unless Times readers read other newspapers."

It also was charged, he added, that a number of Times readers were misled by the lack of department store advertising in the paper into believing that there was a shortage of available merchandise because of the war.

Fahy said the New York Times had not filed a complaint, implying that the justice department had instituted the investigation on its own initiative.

IDEA WAS GOOD

SAN JOSE, Cal.—(U.P.)—Police Sergeant L. E. Gutpill planned to beat the meat shortage in perpetuity by purchasing a black doe rabbit that was about to litter, and building a nice rabbit run. But before the doe could make its first contribution, Sergeant Gutpill was summoned home by his wife to investigate the handicraft of some thief who apparently had the same idea.

'RICK' CALLS FOR 11-POINT LABOR SET-UP

Offers Definite Legislative Plan To Outlaw Strikes, Ban Overtime Pay.

legislators agreed that Rickenbacker's plan was sound—but they generally qualified it by saying "it's pretty drastic."

The judiciary committee, incidentally, is moving with extreme caution in considering the labor regulation bill now before it.

Here is the Rickenbacker program:

"1. Outlaw strikes of any nature for the duration.

"2. Suspend the 40-hour week and make it a 48-hour week nationally, without overtime.

"3. Ban overtime payments and prohibit double-time payments. Put workers on an incentive or bonus basis so that those who produce more will earn more.

4". Suspend the closed shop and the checkoff system in all plants handling war contracts. Give any American the right to work without interference, regardless of whether he or she is affiliated with any labor organization.

"5. Empower any employer in any war plant to end wasteful use of manpower and to discharge any employe—union or nonunion—who engages in or encourages a slowdown of work.

"6. Force unions to incorporate and thus have the same legal and financial responsibility as any other organization or business.

"7. Require that unions make a public accounting annually, listing salaries, wages, bonuses and expense accounts paid to union officers and agents—and dues and assessments collected from members. Require that each member of a union receive a detailed financial statement at least once a year.

"8. Prohibit unions from making political contributions to local politicians as well as to federal or local political parties.

"9. Establish a procedure for the election of officers annually and require a report as to the method of election and a certified copy of the election showing how many votes were cast for and against each candidate.

"10. Eliminate the refusal of membership to competent workmen. One of the most pernicious evils is the "closed union" which actually gives the union the right to deny an American citizen the opportunity to earn his daily bread in an occupation for which he is fitted."

Rickenbacker painted a gripping picture of conditions as he found them on a world-wide tour of inspection he took for the army.

"I mingled with men in dugouts, filled with mud and water," he related. "I saw men waist-deep in the swamps of the jungles. . . . I talked with men in foxholes. . . . I saw men in hastily-dug trenches, at times beating the ground with clenched fists and sobbing their hearts out as they watched Jap planes cruise overhead unopposed, dropping death and destruction.

"I come to you from lands of hastily-dug graves—I come as one who has looked death in the face, a time when one develops, in the twinkling of an eye, an entirely new sense of the material values of life."

The flier termed charges that he was an enemy of labor unions "a dastardly lie," but added:

"Insofar as any organization, individual, labor union, parasitical agitator or disturber, inspires or motivates strikes, or in any way encroaches on an all-out production effort and thereby impedes or slows down the day of victory—yes—the indictment stands."

Rickenbacker declared he had no objection to men earning more money if they produced more, but that he did object "to their getting it simply because some labor racketeer threatens to tell his men to walk off a job when production is vital to the safety of our nation and means life or death to our boys."

"If any man wants to make more, let him make more, and produce more, and, God bless him—as the boys in the foxholes will—he's earned it."

The flier paid earnest tribute to the millions of laboring men and women whom he termed "the unsung heroes of the war."

"America was built by men and women who were willing to work," he stated. "Give us back the old-fashioned incentive and love of country, and we will produce enough war weapons to turn hell upside down on the heads of Hitler, Tojo and Mussolini."

Rickenbacker warned that "one of the greatest underlying menaces of the moment is too much optimism; the belief that we are bound to win in the end," whereas, he asserted, "time is the greatest handicap we are facing in this war."

"Time—the years the Axis had to prepare while we were doing nothing—the years we knowingly shipped out scrap iron to Japan, fully conscious that it was being used to prepare for war, is the handicap that means that we must match in months the years of preparation of the Axis," he said.

"Perhaps now you will understand better why I am urging you to eliminate the incompetents in government, the racketeers in labor, the 'patrioteers' in industry—all those whose object is greedy grasping, selfish personal gain.

"They are destroyers of time. Their measure is the dollar. Mine is the lives of American boys and the preservation of a decent democracy."

He warned against over-optimism by pointing out that, in the first World war, a Germany that had to rely on her own resources, that she was surrounded by enemies and unprepared for a long war, that was fighting against Japan and Italy instead of with them, had been expected to collapse economically in six months.

"Yet that war lasted four long, hard years," he recalled. "Today Germany has conquered Europe, and the conquered nations are supplying her with slave labor, and their resources are being sapped ruthlessly for maintenance of her fighting forces.

"Japan alone through combat, in the first seven months of war against us, captured more resources than we can boast of having available for our own war effort and that of our allies.

"The slave labor these nations have captured knows no such thing as a 40-hour week, no 'feather-bedding,' no restricted efforts, no slowdowns, no strikes.

"With that kind of a picture before you, how long do you think the war will last?"

He pleaded for an all-out war effort, and again asserted "God knows that I am not a labor hater."

"I have been laboring for 40-odd years," he said, "since I was 12 years old. I come from humble parents. I know the value of honest labor. I have served labor as well as capital.

"God knows that the boys on the battle lines don't knock off on Sundays and holidays, or at the end of a 40-hour week—they are gambling their lives every hour of the day and night.

"We glory in what we have done so far, but what we have done isn't a patch on what we could do if we were fighting with the idea that this is a life and death struggle against an enemy who might defeat us.

"Think of the boys who were killed at Pearl Harbor, Wake Island, Bataan, Corregidor, the Coral sea, Dutch Harbor, Guadalcanal and North Africa. It is poor consolation to them to know that in years to come we may win the war. They are as dead as they ever will be. For them the war is over—and they lost.

"Are we to have two armies in this war—one to fight for its country and another to fight for dollars and power?"

Rickenbacker was as outspoken in his criticism of governmental mistakes as he was in his criticism of labor leadership.

He declared that war, of necessity, demanded a unified command and a certain amount of centralized control over business, industry and agriculture.

Rickenbacker was introduced by Gov. John W. Bricker, who termed him "a hero of the first world war and a hero now." Not once during his address was there an adverse demonstration, although there had been rumors that anti-Rickenbacker elements would be present to boo him down.

Rickenbacker's address was made at the joint invitation of the house and senate, and admission to the house chamber was granted only to 600 or so holders of tickets, which were distributed three to each legislator.

Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, who presided at the joint convention, told Rickenbacker as he concluded the session:

"Lincoln, McKinley, Taft and Theodore Roosevelt have spoken from this platform, but none of them exceeded you in his love of his country."

of civic music from the layman's point of view, Jane Williams, secretary of the Community Fund, said that much of the classic music which has been popularized is familiar to the layman although he may not know the technical name for it. She called attention to some of the artists who have been here in seasons past and said that the laymen can enjoy the music of these artists without understanding all the fine points of technique.

Rev. Glenn Lewis, president of the Civic Music association announced that the first 100 new members enrolling in the organization would be given tickets to the Paul Robeson concert being presented here Thursday evening.

Mrs. William Layton, chairman of the drive, gave instructions to the workers and advised them of the first report meeting at the membership headquarters in the Ohio Fuel Gas building Wednesday at 7 p. m.

Group singing was led by Mrs. C. O. Anglin with Mrs. George W. Hall as accompanist. Richard Wright, accompanied by Miss Louise Krause, presented a vocal solo.

Rev. Lewis introduced the officers and members of the executive and advisory board of the organization.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — So many young and green farmers are turning to the Ohio industrial commission for workmen's compensation protection, it was disclosed today.

"There has been an unprecedented number of inquiries and applications for workmen's compensation from farmers during the past few weeks," commission Secretary Ralph Klapp said.

and many fires were left burning after direct hits on the buildings, it was said.

"Attacks on this target and on another enemy airfield in Tunisia were continued yesterday by formations of B-25 Mitchells and A-20 Postons," the communique said. "Bombs burst among aircraft on the ground and more fires were started."

Ste. Marie du Zit is 46 miles northwest of Sousse and 30 miles southeast of Tunis. It is nine miles east of Zaghouan.

Flying Fortresses carried the attack to Bizerte, and other Axis Mediterranean supply ports. A "very large fire" was caused by the destruction of the tanker in Trapani harbor, it was said.

Escorting P-38 Lightnings shot down four enemy aircraft during the bombings.

Fighter planes on patrol over the forward fighting areas shot down one enemy plane and the coastal patrols shot down two more off the Algerian coast, headquarters said.

"Further reports of operations on April 10 show that five more enemy aircraft were destroyed, making a total of 63 on that day," the communique added.

Two Allied planes are missing as a result of yesterday's aerial forays, it was stated.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's seasoned Eighth army patrols engaged rearguards of the African corps on the coastal road between Lake Kelbia and the sea as Rommel maintained his withdrawal through the Enfidaville line under a constant pressure. (This would indicate that the Montgomery advance was from five to 15 miles north of Sousse.)

British First army troops were last reported 15 miles north of Kairouan and pressing on rapidly.

While French troops mopped up the Djebel Ousseait on the west flank and continued to advance northward along the Grand Dorsal range, the British First army in the Medjez-El-Bab area, 35 miles southwest of Tunis, captured additional hill vantage points.

Meanwhile Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's Flying Fortresses continued to deal devastating punches, bombing a convoy of 11 tank carriers and over vessels in the Sicilian straits and scoring several damaging near misses. They blasted Bizerte where a medium-sized cargo vessel was hit directly. They battered Trapani harbor in Sicity where a number of powered barges and a large tanker were smashed.

The Axis air forces suffered further crippling assaults at the airfield Ste. Marie du Zit, 27 miles south of Tunis. At least 19 fires sprang up in the wake of heavy loads of high explosive.

Oudna landing ground, 12 miles south of Tunis, also was torn apart in a raid.

The RAF did considerable damage among Rommel's troop and transport concentrations at Enfidaville, Bou Ficha, a coastal town 14 miles to the north, and Zaghouan, 18 miles northwest of Bou Ficha.

Altogether the Allies shot down seven Axis planes yesterday, and lost two, the communique said.

Bombers raided Naples Sunday night and left hits on the Vittorio Emmanuele Mole and in the vicinity of the shipbuilding works.

Other Allied planes from Malta attacked railways and factories at Pozzallo on the southeast coast of Sicily and shipping at Marsala on the Sicilian west coast.

The German communique said Rommel's rearguards were impeding the Allied advance "with good effect" in the area north of Kairouan and Sousse.

Hitler Demands All of Italian Fleet

LONDON — (INS) — Adolf Hitler made three specific demands of Benito Mussolini at their meeting last week, the London Daily Express said today, quoting reports from Stockholm. They were:

1—Joint action and the full exchange of information in the diplomatic field, to forestall the possibility of Italy seeking a separate peace.

2—Full utilization of the Italian fleet under the command of Admiral Karl Doenitz.

3—Mobilization of every man and woman in Italy along German lines.

U. S. Liberators Raid Naples On Two Days

CAIRO — (U.P.) — Four-engined Consolidated Liberator bombers of the 9th U. S. Air Force raided Naples, Italy's second largest port, in daylight Sunday and Monday, a communique announced today.

The double blow at one of the main Axis supply bases for Tunisia came at a time when German Marshal Erwin Rommel was trying desperately to get supplies through to his armies.

One Liberator was lost in Sunday's raid. Other Liberators shot down three enemy planes and probably destroyed five others.

Liberators yesterday also bombed Cosenza, Crotone and Pizzo, all in southern Italy.

Russian Front Quiets To Patrol Action

MOSCOW — (U.P.) — Fighting along the whole length of the vast Russian front simmered down to patrol and artillery activity today following the repulse of new German attacks southeast of Leningrad and southeast of Kharkov.

More than 2,000 German officers and men were killed in futile enemy attacks on the Russian lines on the Volkhov sector below Leningrad yesterday. Many fell in hand-to-hand fighting with bayonets and grenades.

At one time, the Monday midnight communique said, the Germans wedged the soviet lines, but a counter-attack restored the situation.

A soviet counter-attack also wiped out a short-lived German advance south of Balakleya, below Kharkov, and killed 160 of the enemy.

Sheriff's Deputies Hunting Relatives Of 'Mystery Boy'

doesn't know the names of any playmates or the name of the school he attended before coming to his grandmother's home. He doesn't know where or with whom he lived previously but opines it may have been "Akron" and the people's name may have been "Fiduci."

"I think maybe my grandmother lives near Lucas," he told Deputy Sheriff C. C. Gongwer about 11 p. m.

This reporter, being a Lucas resident, was asked to check in Lucas shortly before midnight but the search was in vain. Hoyt Leiter, postmaster, George Clark, Lucas' only rural carrier, merchants and residents knew neither a "Corn" nor "Hoyer" family in their vicinity.

Further calls were made today to authorities of Shelby, Loudonville, Perrysville, Galion and Crestline, but none led to the lad's identification.

Johnny was a little hazy about his age. He reiterated time and again that it was not his intention of running away from home but that he became lost in the surroundings which were unfamiliar to him. Most questions were met with "I don't know" from the child, weary with fruitless questioning.

"They're good to me here," he volunteered as he ate breakfast in county jail, prior to being removed to detention quarters.

Although unable, or as some questioners believe unwilling, to answer most questions, Johnny is able to write and do simple problems in fractions. Today he wrote his grandmother's name as "Mary Hoyer" instead of "Anna Hoyer."

He says he had not gone to school since coming to live with his grandmother but that he went to a one-room school previously.

Johnny wears freshly-laundered underwear, a cotton checked flannel shirt, gay striped socks, "loafer" shoes, light blue-gray wash pants and a dark blue sweater.

the drive by the women's committee will be formulated when the officials and workers in this campaign meet today at 7:30 p. m. at the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Tentative plans are for a canvass of all women's clubs here with a $3,000 minimum goal set for each of them.

Last night in a radio address Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said the United Nations were now "piling up the thunderclouds of the greatest attack in history."

Morgenthau said that, exclusive of taxes, the government must borrow $70,000,000,000 this year—$20,000,000,000 during the first four months and $25,000,000,000 in each of the second and third four-month periods.

The secretary, speaking at a rally at Carnegie hall and broadcasting over NBC, said the second front was near at hand.

"The second front is no military secret," Morgenthau said. "We all know that, just over the horizon, we of the United Nations are piling up the thunderclouds of the greatest attack in history.

"We are massing for that attack now. The planning, the patient preparation, the bitter time when we had to take blows without returning them, because we weren't ready all of that is past. Now we're ready to deal a few blows ourselves; and they'll be blows, I can promise you, that will rock Nazi Germany to its rotten, blood-stained foundations."

Asserting that "ten per cent is no longer enough, Morgenthau asked the nation to buy extra bonds during April, even those already participating in the payroll savings plan.

Production of wheat in Ohio last year totaled 36,183,000.

dling of the manpower question."

Like most local spokesmen, Nixon denounced Eddie Rickenbacker, speaking at about the same time before the legislature in Columbus, and others as those who "seek" to heap criticism and censure on the head of labor without presenting a full picture of the situations involved."

Nixon pointed to the failure to control prices as labor's reason for asking wage adjustments which in some instances have led to strikes.

He directed criticism at governmental activities which "in a measure sabotage honest war effort." He pointed particularly to price control evasion, citing the specific instance of the current discussion on "grade labeling" of canned foods.

"Of course," he said, "big business is opposed to revealing the quality. It might cut down on profits."

While Nixon's discussion was keyed primarily to a discussion of national issues, Nellie Lederman, educational and activities director of district No. 7 UERMW, who followed him, spoke principally of the state situation.

She urged that individuals, as well as organizations lend their assistance in the battle for legislation favorable to labor by exercising their privilege in "writing their congressmen." She climaxed her talk with an attack on the Ohio legislative, declaring "you may two-time the time issue in Ohio but we don't want any two-timing on the all-out war effort."

In the absence of Phil Hannah, state secretary and treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, Rudy Schneider, president of the local Teamsters union, an AFL affiliate, represented the organization.

Albert J. Fitzgerald, international president of the UERMW, also wired last minute regrets suggesting that all locals of the two unions present delegates to take the time alloted him on the program.

Mansfield's most outstanding contribution to the program were the numbers played by the Local 711 band under the direction of Frank Dekreil.

Local leaders introduced, who spoke briefly, included, besides Schneider: Joseph H. Hawkins, local 711 president; Desmond Walker, local 17; Clarence Fike, representing AFL Hoisting Engineers; William Bell, CIO local 169; and Claude Wisdom, international representative of United Rubber workers.

Msgr. R. C. Goebel pronounced the invocation, followed by remarks of welcome by Mayor W. J. Locke, with Rabbi D. Rub giving the benediction.

AUSTRALIA AND ALASKA FACING NEW JAP THREAT

Strings of Bases In North and South Pacific Bared as Allies Bag 37 Planes.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said the losses had apparently "blunted" a large-scale Japanese air offensive and "dislocated the immediate plans" of the enemy.

Nevertheless, Gen. Blamey warned a new Japanese bid to regain the initiative in the South seas battle theater might erupt suddenly and declared the enemy was making a tremendous effort to offset the Allied victories in the Coral sea, the Solomons, New Guinea and the Bismarck sea.

"The result of this struggle in the next few weeks will have the greatest importance for us," Gen. Blamey said.

The enemy's growing air strength was underlined by three massive raids in less than a week: Yesterday's 100-plane raid on Port Moresby; Sunday's 45-plane attack on Oro Bay, New Guinea, where Allied fighters knocked down 23 planes; and a 98-plane thrust against Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons, April 7, when 39 Japanese planes were sent crashing into the sea.

Elsewhere in the Southwest Pacific, Allied fliers shot down or badly damaged 15 other Japanese aircraft yesterday, sank an enemy submarine off New Britain, damaged at least two cargo ships and pounded Japanese bases over a wide area.

In a half-hour running battle, a single U. S. heavy bomber fought off 12 intercepting Japanese fighters over Northeast New Guinea, shooting down seven of the enemy, and returned with "negligible damage" to itself.

On the Burma front, British headquarters reported "no change" for the past two days in fighting north of the Mayu peninsula, along the Bay of Bengal, where Field Marshal Sir Archibald P. Wavell's forces have been driven back toward the Burma-India frontier.

In the air, RAF warplanes blasted Japanese troops, rail traffic, river craft and other targets in widespread raids, and bombed the big enemy coastal base at Akyab.

Knox Uncertain of Jap Attack Plan

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Navy Secretary Knox said today it is impossible for him to determine whether the Japanese have built up strong points north of Australia for attack or defense.

"You must remember," Knox told a press conference, "that an attack on Australia must be accompanied by a tremendous sea force and there is no indication of a concentration pointing to that."

The secretary had been asked to comment on a statement in Australia by General Sir Thomas A. Blamey, commander in chief of Allied ground forces there, that the Japanese had massed 200,000 first line troops and a great air force north of the island continent and could be expected to undertake an offensive at any time.

Specifically discussing Blamey's statement, Knox said he did not know what forces the Japanese had nor what they would do with them.

It is known, he added, that a number of places on New Guinea are strongly garrisoned, but "I don't know whether they are there for attack or defense."

Says FDR Won't Quit White House On Own Accord

NEW YORK — (INS) — Warning of the dangers of a dictatorship in America, Alf M. Landon, former governor of Kansas and 1936 presidential nominee, today maintained that President Roosevelt was seeking to perpetuate himself in office.

"It is perfectly obvious that Mr. Roosevelt won't leave the White House voluntarily," Landon said in an interview following his arrival here from Washington yesterday.

"That is not a healthy condition," he continued. "In a nation such as ours, where popular government obtains, ancient and modern history tells us that when its chief executive seeks to perpetuate himself in office, the inevitable result is the man on horseback.

"We saw that same trend in recent years in Italy under Mussolini and in Germany under Hitler, and it created the condition that brought about the present war."

Landon expressed the fear that the country faced shorter food rations and less oil next winter because the "bureaucracy in Washington is spending too much time on marketing and transportation problems, not realizing that the primary problem is production."

Man Registers For Draft Four Times to Avoid Wives.

NEW YORK — (INS) — Benjamin Cohen, 38, who registered with four draft boards under different names today was credited by the FBI with the dubious distinction of probably having committed more violations of the selective service act than any other individual.

Cohen told arresting agents that he registered at the various boards in an effort to avoid his two wives.

THE 2nd WAR LOAN DRIVE IS ON!

America....you've got to get tougher!

AMERICA — Let's be frank about it . . . so far, many of us back home have been fighting this war from an easy chair.

Many of us have bought War Bonds out of extra cash, out of money we didn't miss too much. We haven't been really tough with ourselves.

But this war is a hard, down-to-reality war. And many of our boys are dying in it.

We've got to buy MORE

So your government asks you to buy Bonds and more Bonds — to get really tough with yourself. We're asking you to give up the frills and "extras" for the rest of this war.

We know how human it is not to make sacrifices until the crisis drives us to it. In England they felt the same way until the bombs started falling. Now they can't do enough!

Bombs are such persuasive things. But just as persuasive ought to be the spirit of our brothers, sons, husbands — who are ready to give all. Think now . . . what are your dollars, compared to their lives?

If you could see

Look at it this way — suppose you had a magic carpet that could take you to Africa and New Guinea. Suppose you could hear the groan of American boys wounded, and American boys dying . . . Say now, how many Bonds would you buy?

That kind of war

THEY . . . are dying. And they will keep on dying until we drown the enemy in an overwhelming torrent of bombs, bullets, guns, tanks, planes, ships, and shells.

That's why we're asking you, in this one month of April alone, to lend Uncle Sam 13 billions of dollars — by buying War Bonds. 13 billions of extra dollars — over and above any buying that you'd be doing anyway!

A lot of money

13 billion dollars is a lot of money. It'll take sweat and tears to raise it. It'll mean going without now. But also — it will mean saving now — to buy later. It'll mean giving up everything you can't square with your conscience, so that we, us, our children, can have a more decent place to live in when this war is won.

The drive is on

So, if someone calls on you to ask you to buy War Bonds in this 2ND WAR LOAN DRIVE. will you buy to the limit — and then buy more?

Better yet, will you go to your Bank, Postoffice, or wherever you're used to buying your Bonds — and buy NOW? Will you lend extra money this month? Money that can hasten the day of Victory? Money that can help to save American lives?

Money buys money

Remember, what you're really buying with your money is still more money. For after all, these Bonds are money! Money plus! Every dollar you put into War Bonds will bring you a dollar plus interest.

So the more Bonds you buy the better for you. Americans — Get Tough — with yourselves — for your country.

Don't say "No"—buy a bond.

Now they're telling about the housewife who offered the butcher Coupon 17 in the first ration book, because the last steak tasted like shoe leather.

General MacArthur's answer to questions involving politics is, "Let's get on with the war"—which is recommended for adoption in Washington and throughout the country.

Memorial To Thomas Jefferson

TODAY, in the nation's capital, was dedicated a magnificent memorial to Thomas Jefferson, on the occasion of the two-hundredth anniversary of his birth.

Except for those college students who do not recall having heard his name, and other "educated" young people who vaguely remember having heard mention of "Jefferson" in association with the stage production of "Rip Van Winkle," the place that Thomas Jefferson holds in American history is so well established as to need none of the special emphasis being given in connection with the dedication ceremonies.

Chief wonderment, in contemplating the versatility of Jefferson and in reviewing his accomplishments in many fields entirely aside from his notable public career, is that he was able to do so much, despite the handicaps of environment and scant opportunity that confronted him in boyhood and young manhood.

His early education was gained in what was then called the "common school," which was a far cry from the elaborate and expensively maintained public school system of the present day—but he managed, with some outside tutoring, to acquire knowledge of several foreign languages, in addition to English, and to qualify for admission to college at the age of 17, with showing of special aptitude in mathematics and science.

In the light of his achievements in those early days, it may be wondered to what heights of statesmanship, inventive genius and humanitarian leadership Thomas Jefferson might have arisen had he been privileged to enjoy the educational opportunities and material advantages that have since been developed in the nation which he so capably helped to found.

If, at some time, resumption of teaching history is decided upon, one of the many books about Thomas Jefferson may be deemed suitable for supplementary reading.

Senator Guffey, of Pennsylvania, suggests a congressional resolution to promote the study of American history, and proposes an appropriation of 300 million dollars in federal aid to public schools. But it is at least possible a further survey will reveal that it is not more MONEY that is the real need in bringing improvement to the American school system.

Legislators Hear Rickenbacker

EVANGELISTIC fervor marked the utterances of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker as he appeared before the Ohio legislature last night as spokesman for the American armed forces in urging greater intensity of war effort on the home front.

Warning against over-optimism, Capt. Rickenbacker expressed belief that an army of 15,000,000 American men and 3,000,000 American women in uniform will be required to defeat the Axis powers. He made special reference to the great power of Japan in the Pacific and told of his own observations of the inadequacy of Allied preparations to meet that menace.

Paying tribute to the millions of men and women who are working earnestly in war industries, Rickenbacker said the charge that he was attacking labor unions was a "dastardly lie"—that his attack was directed against anyone who impeded production and retarded the day of victory. Among these he included "incompetents in government, the avaricious or incapable in industry and racketeer leaders in labor," whom he designated as "a miserable handful in relation to our entire citizenry"

Whatever differences of opinion may exist as to the practicability of Rickenbacker's suggestions for legislation designed to increase home front participation in the war and to remove obstacles to victory, his sincerity cannot be doubted.

"I have been accused of pretending to speak for the soldiers at the front," he said during the course of his address. "God knows it is about time someone started speaking for them. They are out there on the battle lines, on the high seas or under them, in the air or in the training camps. They are out there fighting and dying—and they can't speak for themselves."

Back in the city where he was born, Capt. Rickenbacker was accorded a reception due him as an outstanding hero of the first World war and a man who is performing valuable service in the present war. He was given an attentive hearing by his audience of state legislators and officials and his words of warning and advice merit thoughtful consideration.

April, Month for Energy

APRIL is a grand month. Not a lazy month, as tradition suggests, even though it may arouse a desire to go fishing. And modern people, at this time of year, have no great longing "to go on pilgrimages," according to the Chaucer pattern several centuries ago.

The spring feeling in this part of the world, at least, is not lazy, but active and creative. Even schoolboys on their spring vacation don't seem to care for loafing in the sun, so much as roaming around and doing something.

April is the month for energy, expressed in a thousand ways. Especially just now in two forms—planting crops and fighting enemies.

Now It's Paper Alarm Clocks

PAPER alarm clocks are the latest. Strictly speaking, they are clocks made of paper pulp, specially treated. They require only seven pounds of brass for 1,000 clocks as against the normal 394, and 400 pounds of steel as against 818 in prewar days. As 12,000,000 alarm clocks are manufactured annually in peacetime, this means a considerable saving.

Paper can stand more strain than its looks suggest. Carwheels for a time were made of papier mache, and though the experiment was abandoned, the wheels proved usable.

Congress has rejected the "pay-as-you-go" tax plan—apparently thinking that there's no place to go.

OUT IN THE CRUEL COLD WORLD

China's Place In Post-War Plans

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The Capital in Wartime:

It's a delicate subject, but off the record and in cloakrooms, beer-stubes, and over what there is in the coffee cups, China's situation now and her place in the postwar picture are getting far more attention than has leaked out.

When Lieut. Gen. George Kenney, air commander of the South Pacific, left here without even a half-hearted promise of all-out air aid to blast Japan's lifelines and battle lines, a great many persons were dismayed.

Following that, Winston Churchill came through with his historic message indicating that after the war with the Nazis is completed, no great effort would be needed to wipe up the Japs and that probably a large portion of our armies could be demobilized.

ITS hard for a layman to imagine what effect this had on the Chinese and Chinese sympathizers here. In some quarters, it is reported that Madame Chiang Kai-shek was so perturbed that she kept long distance wires hot expressing her dismay.

What T. V. Soong, China's suave foreign minister, thought about it hasn't been hinted, but Soong has had setbacks before and there is no reason to believe that the latest one has bothered him more than others. It is, however, significant that many international observers here think that when the "Pacific Charter" is finally written on postwar paper, much of it will be in the handwriting of T. V. Soong and that the other United Nations are now unwittingly placing the pen in his hand.

In other words, by neglecting to give aid, we are compounding our debt to China at such a rate that the note will have to be paid in full at the peace table.

On the slightly more positive side is the fact that a bill has been introduced in congress and is finding some substantial supporters to amend our iron-clad Asiatic exclusion act to open the door a small crack to Chinese immigration. Oddly enough, some of its chief backers are west coast legislators, reflecting a much more realistic attitude there toward China and its place in the postwar sun than some global strategists who now are directing all attention to Europe.

THE recent tax battle in the house of representatives has brought to the mind of many a remark of the late Henry T. Rainey, once speaker of the House.

"I have been on the ways and means committee 20 years," said Rainey. "I think I know all that any congressman could possibly learn about taxes and I can sum it up in several words. Taxation is the fine art of plucking the most feathers from the goose with the fewest squawks."

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"I wish you folks would convince my husband that I'm entitled to three pairs of shoes a year!"

Listen World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Make Yourself!

SHE WANTS to go away. Leave Bill and the baby with the old folks and go away for a year. To a new place—new people—a new job. For what?

To "FIND HERSELF."

No, she isn't a selfish quitter, nor a shallow egotist. She's sincere—really believes that this is the right thing to do and that she'll never amount to anything as an individual, much less a wife or mother, unless she does it.

Nutty notion? Yes—judged by 1890 standards. But you'd be surprised to find how many will agree with her today. This yen to "find ourselves" is spreading everywhere regardless of sex, age, or station in life. Thirty years ago, self-REPRESSION, was the keynote for civilized conduct. Today it's self-EXPRESSION. And we're falling for it in mobs.

Somewhere we're sure — just around the corner, in some new place, with some different people - our REAL SELF lies hidden. Hidden and waiting for us to find and express it. And until we do this, neither we nor our lives will ever have meaning or authority.

But just what do we mean by these "Real Selves" for which we search so eagerly? Naturally, individual interpretations differ. But roughly, we mean some new situation in life which will free us from the uncertainty which plagues us now. Some new way of living which will set free the talent we're convinced we possess and bring us the success and popularity that is our due.

Hitherto, we've been held back. We've led colorless, unsatisfactory lives . . . bound down by family obligations and uncongenial jobs. And, naturally, people have taken us at our face value . . . decided we were the stupid weaklings which we seemed. But if only we could get away from all this . . . find the right place in life, the right work . . . everything would be different. Then, at last, we'd break loose from this mask which hides us and emerge as we really are . . . brilliant, poised, powerful.

But WOULD we?

NO, WE WOULDN'T.

Life doesn't happen like that. People aren't made like that. Real Selves don't lie around waiting for us to discover them, like prize packages in a Treasure Hunt.

We don't FIND our real selves, by seeking new environments. We MAKE our real selves as we go along, by adjusting our spirits to life AS IS, by using whatever material comes to hand.

We aren't made or freed by circumstances and surroundings. WE MAKE AND FREE OURSELVES BY OUR OWN DREAMS, DEEDS AND DETERMINATION.

It is true that we all have new, different, better Selves. It is natural and right that we should seek to find them, long to express them. But these finer Selves are not to be found outside us . . . THEY ARE WORKING WITHIN US, WAITING TO BE DISCOVERED AND DEVELOPED.

You want to "express yourself?" Very well, go ahead! But first you must find something to express. And there's only one way to find that "something." How?

By cutting out the aimless daydreaming and harnessing the childish restlessness—

And starting to do
A job on yourself—
RIGHT HERE!
RIGHT NOW!

Ohio—Liquor Dealer.

Action on a proposal that the state get out of the liquor business altogether and return it to private industry has been postponed by the Ohio senate liquor control committee. At the same time the senate has cleared the way for a liquor rationing plan by concurring in the equitable distribution bill passed by the house of representatives last week. Ohio's liquor director has said the ration system will cause the need for more state liquor stores but that it is doubtful if they will be opened.

It is conceivable that rationing might not have been necessary if the sale of liquor had been under the control of private industry where it belongs. Sentiment throughout the state is reported growing for Ohio to quit the liquor trade. That the government monopoly in Ohio has been a rank failure is undeniable. It is the fault of the system. Politics, patronage, waste, extravagance and inefficiency enter the picture. —Toledo Blade.

Dispute Over Wages Cancels Gift Of Two Liberty Ships to Chinese

WASHINGTON—The deal to give China a pair of Liberty ships is off. It was going to be a fine United Nations gesture, with christening by Madame Chiang Kai-shek, and names supplied by the generalissimo himself.

But a row started over wages for the Chinese crew. Chinese Consul General Tsune-chi Yu in New York wanted to pay the crew Panamanian wages, comparable to U. S. standards.

Since the Chinese government would own and operate the ships, he figured Chinese seamen could be paid whatever wages China pleased. However, this would mean wage revolt from 10,000 Chinese seamen in British ships, plus the Chinese crews of Dutch and Norwegian vessels.

Chinese on these United Nations ships are paid much less than the American scale, even though they have received three war increases. So British, Dutch, and Norwegian governments urged that current pay levels be maintained. In this they were supported by the U. S. War Shipping Administration. If China was to be given two new Liberty ships, she must pay her crews current Chinese wages, not U. S. wages, they argued. Otherwise there would be a tremendous walk-out of Chinese on United Nation ships. But Chinese Consul General Tsune stood fast in his demands for the higher scale.

Result: the deal was called off. Madame Chiang will not christen two new Liberty vessels.

British Jail Newsman.

REASON New York Times Correspondent Frank Kluckhohn was jailed for ten days in North Africa by the British Army was that he impugned the motives of British military leaders.

He tried to send a service message to his paper in New York—not for publication but for the editor's information—to this effect:

The British are using other troops to do the dirty work in North Africa, so they can march up the coast to victory.

It is suspected here that Kluckhohn heard this tale of criticism from some disgruntled French or American soldiers, and sent it on for the information of his editors in New York.

The censor caught it, and referred it to Gen. Montgomery, who is a rigid disciplinarian. Incensed and infuriated at the "utter falsity" of the story, he is reported to have said, "They call me a martinet; well, by God, this time I'll behave like one."

So he threw Kluckhohn in the clink for ten days.

Note: When Montgomery commanded the Third Division in France, before the fall, he called it the Iron Division, and took great pride in the ability of his men to do all the dirty work of war. Comrades say he has the same feeling about his Eighth army.

Puerto Rican Hotspot.

IT LOOKS as if the turbulent island of Puerto Rico would get a new commissioner of education as a result of disregarding President Roosevelt's instructions that the English language must be made compulsory in the Puerto Rican schools.

The present commissioner of education, Dr. Jose M. Gallardo has just received an acid reprimand from Secretary of the Interior Ickes, who said:

"I am confident that the president would not have tendered you this appointment if he had not had my assurance and yours that this (teaching of English) would be the keystone of your school policy. I am gravely disappointed, and I shall, of course, fulfill my obligation to advise the president as to my feelings."

The whole question of teaching English on the Spanish-speaking island of Puerto Rico flared into the open when the Chavez senatorial committee visited the island and Senator Taft unearthed a letter of the president's written to Commissioner Gallardo in 1937 urging: "It is an indispensable part of American policy that the coming generation of American citizens in Puerto Rico grow up with complete facility of the English tongue."

However, Commissioner Gallardo told the committee that teaching both English and Spanish was extremely difficult and had not been carried out in the lower grades. Most Puerto Rican children do not progress beyond the sixth grade so this is equivalent to omitting the teaching of English altogether.

Since then President Roosevelt has written to Senator Chavez reinforcing his earlier position regarding the English language, and it looks as if this would be one of the hot spots in the probe of the so-called "India of the Western Hemisphere."

ERNIE PYLE — Roving Reporter

Introducing Major General Terry Allen, Who Goes In Strongly for Rough Stuff.

SOMEWHERE IN TUNISIA — Maj. Gen. Terry Allen is one of my favorite people. Partly because he doesn't give a damn for hell nor high water; partly because he's more colorful than most; and partly because he's the only general outside the air forces I can call by his first name.

If there's one thing in the world Allen lives and breathes for, it's to fight. He was all shot up in the last war, and he seems not the least averse to getting shot up again.

This is no intellectual war with him. He hates Germans and Italians like vermin, and his pattern for victory is simple—just wade in and murder the hell out of the low-down, good-for-nothing so-and-so's.

Allen's speech is picturesque. No writer can fully capture him on paper, because his talk is so wonderfully profane it can't be put down in black and white.

ALLEN was shot through the jaws in the last war. This wound causes him to make an odd hissing noise when he is intense. He breathes by sucking the air in between his teeth, and it sounds like a leak in a tire. This reverse hissing will doubtless confuse the Japs when he gets around to that part of the world.

It was General Allen's outfit that took Oran, in the original landings. Then it was necessary to hold his troops there, and for a couple of months Allen not-so-quietly went nuts sitting back in an Oran olive grove watching the war from a distance.

Finally he couldn't stand it any longer, so he went to the high command and said, "Is this a private war, or can anybody get in?" At least that's the way the legend goes, and it sounds like him. At any rate Allen got in, and now he's as happy as a lark.

After they came to the front I drove over to visit them. When I finally found Allen he said, "Don't bother to pitch your tent. You sleep in my tent tonight."

An invitation from a general is in order, so I carried my bedroll up to the general's tent and looked in. There was one bedroll on the ground. That took up half the tent. The other half was occupied by a five-gallon tin of water sitting on some rocks over a gasoline flame on the ground, and by a rough unpainted folding table.

I couldn't figure out where he expected me to sleep. But it was all solved that evening by the general's orderly, who simply carried out the water can, smothered the fire with sand, moved the table, and unrolled my bedroll on the ground beside the general's.

As far as I know, Terry Allen is the only general in Tunisia who sleeps on the ground. All the others carry folding cots. General Allen won't allow any of his staff to sleep on a cot. Why, you ask? Because he says if everybody in his headquarters had a cot it would take several extra trucks to carry them, and he can use the trucks to better purpose. He likes to fight rough anyway.

ALLEN is an old cavalryman. He still wears his high-laced cavalry boots when he dresses up. He married an El Paso girl, and calls El Paso home. He carries pictures of his wife and 15-year-old son in a leather pocketcase, and is tremendously proud of them.

He has been known as one of the best polo players in the army. He hasn't any horse to ride now, but he keeps in shape by doing a three-mile after-breakfast jog on foot through the hills several times a week. He smokes incessantly.

I went out on a shooting expedition that night with some of Allen's men, and it was midnight when I got back. He had left the light on for me, and the wind was making the tent heave and groan, but Allen was sleeping like a child.

Dirt blew in and filtered over us. My bedroll was right over where the fire had been, and I slept warmly for the first time in weeks. Toughly trained sentries with itchy fingers stood at the front and rear of our tent. Boy, did I feel well protected!

At 7 next morning one of the sentries came in and awakened General Allen. He grunted and went back to sleep. Five minutes later another sentry came in, and knelt over and kept saying, "General sir, General sir," till Allen responded and started getting up.

I had slept in all my clothes; the general in his long underwear. We were both covered with sifted dirt from the windstorm. It took us about 30 seconds to dress, and then we just walked out of the tent and went to breakfast, without washing or anything.

That's how life is for one general at the front.

Dave Boone Says:

WHAT our soldiers, sailors and airmen are doing every minute every day to save the lives, property and future of those on the home front is not on any petty ten per cent basis, and anybody back home who thinks a ten per cent contribution to this country's war bonds is enough has a darned poor idea of proper percentages.

* * *

"This is no ten per cent war," as Chester Davis says, and that ought to be one of the slogans in the thirteen-billion-dollar second war loan drive which started yesterday. Nothing less than 100 per cent is asked of the men at the front. Everybody should bear that in mind during this drive.

* * *

President Roosevelt, showing the need to siphon off excess spending money, cites the case of a mechanic who complained that his wife had to pay $1.50 for a bunch of asparagus in March, and also a high price for winter strawberries. The man admitted that he and his wife had never thought of such things in March until the last year or two.

* * *

Well, the president just ain't heard nothing yet. There is, for instance, the story of the worker whose wife ordered him to bring home two baskets of fresh peaches and have them wrapped in a sable coat.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Out From Under

SALES of farms are common about our county. Families of new owners and renters have been on the move since January. Sale bills of farm auctions are displayed in the newspaper offices, in windows of groceries and filling stations, and tacked upon telephone poles at every crossroads.

Last week I attended a sale on a farm at the head of the valley. The owner retired to the village some years ago, but had rented the homestead, share plan, until last fall, when the renter moved away. All during the cold winter, the old man drove daily the four miles to and from the farm to feed and tend the stock. No profit in that, but his father had built that house, and he himself had helped to plant the orchard.

Discouraged, he advertised the place for sale, and sold it. Then auctioned off his motley line of goods and tools, accumulated through half a century. On the day of auction, the basement kitchen was warm and cozy from the big wood range, although the weather outside was raw and cold. Barrels, iron kettles, butcher tools, bee hives, a churn, a rough old meat bench and a dozen oldtime crocks were sold from the porch.

At the barn, the auctioneer—a kindly, elderly man—sold the familiar old farm tools; a span of mules; harness; fine wool sheep, shoats, and then the cows. These showed the lack of proper attention, and were thin. I bought one.

Near sundown the last item had found a buyer. Many articles that could be towed—buggy, sulky, corn planter, farm wagon, mower, etc.—were tied behind cars and taken away.

"I guess it'll soon all be carted off," remarked the tired owner, as we climbed the hill to the road. "It doesn't seem the same, with all the familiar things gone. I'm glad though, I am planning to be back and help with the work this summer—it'll be some like a grandfather enjoying a grandchild. I won't have the full responsibility. Besides, I've learned that he can be happiest, who has very little, and is satisfied."

THEATERS

Diplomatic Director.

Director George Marshall is probably the miracle man of Hollywood. Marshall had the ticklish job of directing Paramount's musical comedy, "Star Spangled Rhythm," now playing at the Ohio. The picture has more than 40 famous stars, all accustomed to undivided attention and glory. No bones were broken, no feelings hurt. Some of the headliners in the film are Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour, Veronica Lake, Alan Ladd, Dick Powell, Rochester, Paulette Goddard, Victor Moore and many others. The picture has seven hit tunes, including "That Old Black Magic."

Strange Cargo.

Strangest assortment of passengers ever assembled on a movie ship sails in Orson Welles' newest RKO radio film, "Journey Into Fear," opening tomorrow at the Madison. Co-starring Dolores del Rio and Joseph Cotten, the melodramatic chiller is said to be a distinct departure from anything Welles has produced previously. In it, Cotten plays an American naval gunnery engineer fleeing Nazi agents, while Miss del Rio is seen as an adagio dancer appearing with her partner, Jack Durant, in second-seaport cafes. The grimy tramp steamer is supposed to be en route from Istanbul, Turkey, to a port in Russia, and Cotten and Miss del Rio are aboard her. Co-attraction is "He's My Guy."

"Gorilla Man"

A topical film about the British Commandos and their efforts to expose a vicious group of spies operating in England opens today at the Ritz. The picture "Gorilla Man," features John Loder and Ruth Ford, with a supporting cast headed by Marian Hall, Richard Fraser and Paul Cavanaugh. Loder, English actor, is cast as the Commando captain. After intercepting a radio message sent by the spies, the captain sets out to expose them, but he runs into trouble when he is suspected of murder and desertion. Co-attraction is "Whistling In Dixie."

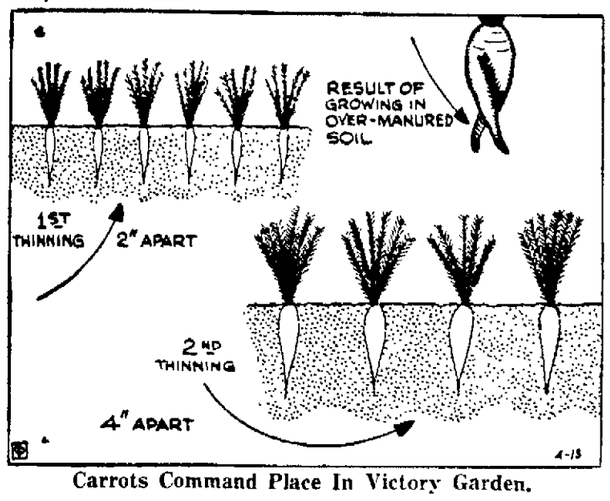
At Park.

Loretta Young and Brian Aherne co-star in "A Night to Remember," now at the Park. The film is a mirthful murder mystery with Jeff and Nancy Troy, (Aherne and Young) a young married couple finding the body. A comedy-drama of the sidewalks of New York, "Kid Dynamite," is the co-feature

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Carrots Command Place In Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

CARROTS ARE entitled to a Number 1 place in the Victory garden because they are a vital vitamin vegetable containing high amounts of valuable vitamin A. Carrots are also a wise selection for the person who must plan a Victory garden in a limited area for they give heavy yields from a small amount of space.

To insure long and well-shaped carrots spade the soil very deep and remove all stones. Carrot seeds are small and care must be taken not to plant them too thickly.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden Graph, when the carrots have grown to lead pencil size, thin them to stand two inches apart. The thinned out carrots incidentally are excellent for table use.

Ten days or two weeks after the first thinning the carrots will be ready for a second thinning. At this time thin the carrots to four inches apart as illustrated.

Carrots and other root crops should not be grown in soil which has just been fed with fresh stable manure or they are likely to split or crack or develop club-roots as shown in the illustration.

CUTS DOWN A LITTLE

CLEVELAND (UP) Louis Aiken, 76, hasn't been feeling so well lately, so he has cut his work-day at the American Shipbuilding Co. plant here to "only" eight hours. Previously, he had been putting in 11 hours daily at his machine in the Erie lake-front yard.

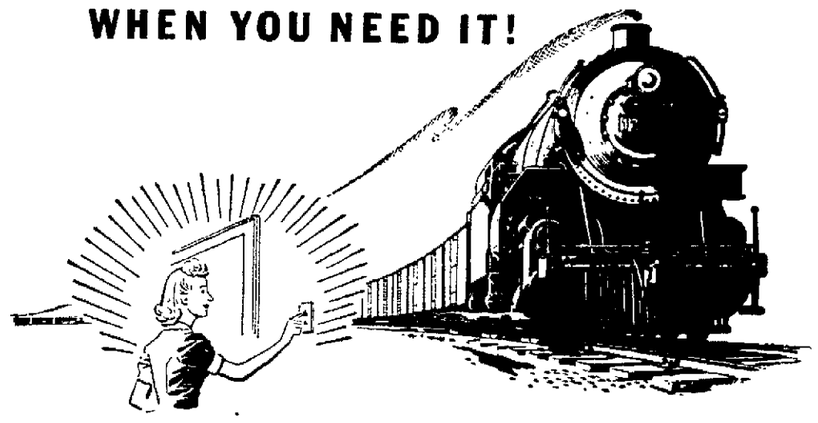
ALWAYS THERE WHEN YOU NEED IT!


FEW of us realize, as we snap on our lights, what a vast organization we summon. We've come to take that little switch for granted. Perhaps your railroad, too, has become an object of that same over-familiarity. If you stop for a moment to think what those gleaming rails running through your community mean to your way of life, their significance is overwhelming. Your town linked with a thousand others . . . the resources of the globe brought to your doorstep . . . the products of your skill made available to the whole world. Think, too, what it means in manpower, equipment, and resourcefulness to maintain such an organization, so that it is always available whenever you wish to use it.
Right now, Victory is the keynote for everyone. We of the B & O have made it our first job while still caring for your civilian needs. And, when peace comes, sixty thousand of us will still be working with you, wholeheartedly, for progress and prosperity.

D.A.R. CHAPTER HEARS TALK BY A. M. COLBY

Mrs. Fred Herring Entertains Mary Washington Chapter of D. A. R. for Dessert Luncheon; Mrs. Simons and Mrs. Dann Assist.

MRS. DAVID FEISER presented the program at which A. M. Colby spoke, when Mrs. Fred Herring opened her home, Monday afternoon, to members of the Mary Washington chapter of the D. A. R. for a dessert luncheon. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. J. B. Simons and Mrs. E. W. Dann.

Mrs. J. A. Rigby presided at the luncheon table, which was centered with a lovely arrangement of spring flowers.

The meeting was opened with a report by Mrs. P. B. Deitrichson and Mrs. E. W. Dann, on the state convention of the D. A. R., which they attended in Columbus. Mrs. H. H. Sanford used an Easter theme in conducting the devotions.

In his talk, Mr. Colby related how he started collecting autographs of famous people, when he was a boy. Some years ago, he started collecting letters of noted people, and he now has letters written by every president of the United States and many other celebrities.

Some of Mr. Colby's letters were read and exhibited. He gave informative comments on the characteristics that were revealed in the handwriting and composition.

The business meeting followed the program, and was conducted by the president, Mrs. D. N. Roller. A note of thanks was presented from the Federation of Women, in appreciation of the American flag recently given to the Women's Club by the Mary Washington chapter. This flag was presented, to be used by all clubs holding their meetings at the Women's Club.

The war projects meeting of the D. A. R. will be held in Cincinnati April 17-21. Delegates of this chapter are Mrs. Roller and Mrs. Deitrichson. Mrs. George J. Searle, Mrs. F. A. Weaver, Mrs. Avery Hand and Mrs. Fred Herring are alternates. Details for the chapter's next meeting, May 10, will be announced at a later date.

'THE HUMAN COMEDY' REVIEWED BY CLUB

William Saroyan's "The Human Comedy" was reviewed Monday afternoon at the meeting of the Monday Study club, held at the home of Mrs. John Thorne, Parkview street with Mrs. Lawrence Grabler as associate hostess. Seventeen members were in attendance.

Mrs. W. E. Slabaugh, the club's defense chairman, announced a quota of $150,000 for the women's organizations of Mansfield to raise in the second War bond drive from April 12 until May 1. Mrs. Slabaugh will forward to each club member additional information received at the meeting Tuesday evening in the Chamber of Commerce room.

The program committee appointed for the coming year includes Mrs. W. Workman, chairman, Mrs. Paul Weir and Mrs. Lloyd Brown.

In her review of "The Human Comedy," Mrs. George Gualaas told that the widely read and popular novel is a story centering around a telegraph messenger boy, Homer Macauley. It develops into a family saga with a great deal of homespun philosophy woven into it.

The title of the novel aptly describes the contents, there are amusing incidents to relieve the tragedy that the story of any human life always embraces.

When refreshments were served from a buffet table decorated with spring flowers, Miss Florence Conn presided.

The last meeting of the year will be a dinner meeting Monday, April 26 at 6:30 p. m. The committee in charge is Mrs. Slabaugh, chairman; Mrs. Henry Huston and Mrs. Lowell Bourns.

Plans were made for the Mother-Daughter banquet, which will be held in the assembly room of the church Monday, May 10. Reservations for the banquet must be made not later than May 9 with Mrs. Martha Pifer, Mrs. Davidson or Mrs. John Lorentz.

The next regular meeting of the society will be held June 10 at Brandt's cabin. Hostesses for that meeting will be Mrs. John Brandt, Mrs. Donald Moore and Mrs. John Linsenmayer.

Present Choir Of Baptist Church On Palm Sunday

On Palm Sunday, April 18, Mrs. Edith Fletcher Jameson will present the choir of the Park Avenue Baptist church, of which she is the director of music, in Gounod's "Redemption," with a noted soloist.

"Redemption" is a difficult work, and has not been heard in Mansfield for many years. Organist at the program will be Robert Wervey. Mrs. Minnie Marks Cahall will be at the piano.

Call Out the Mop Brigade

Spring is here. So is the broom, scrub pail and mop brigade! In keeping with the need of making everything last longer, Pop will join Mom in her work. He'll repair everything that is out of order.

Here are a few how-to-dos:

The time to clean up the windows is when the curtains are out for their cleaning. They can be made to shine with a little whiting, powdered chalk or prepared cleanser on a damp cloth. Wiping with a damp cloth is enough to clean glass block panels. Household ammonia will remove fingerprints from mirrors or glass-topped tables.

A third of all America's home fires are caused by sparks from unclean or faulty chimneys lighting on flammable roofs. That's why fixing up the chimney is a vital part of any spring clean-up campaign. The chimney should be repointed and repainted if necessary. It can be cleaned by filling a burlap bag with excelsior and weighting it with several bricks. Tie to a strong rope and lower into the chimney till the flues are clean.

A little wax can do a lot of things at spring cleaning time. Try applying wax to painted window sills to prevent their being marred by splash-overs of rain or condensation. Waxing the feet of furniture will keep them from scratching waxed floors when the furniture is moved.

This year the best spring slogan is clean up but don't clean out. Take those old clothes in the attic to a relief organization. Bundle up the old newspapers, wrapping papers and rags for sale to a collector, and the magazines and books for the USO.

Spring is the season for making the old roof weather-tight and fire-resistant to last out the war. For extra, insulating thickness asphalt shingles can be laid right over the old roof, but the surface should first be cleaned up and smoothed down.

CHAPTER XI

"Where you want to slip away to, mum?" Uncle Pete Quincy asked Rosemary.

"To Option, Uncle Pete. He's there. Or he was."

"Name is Boyle? I don't know any Boyle in Option."

"He's new there. He came about the same time we did."

"What does he do?"

"He — he —" Rosemary didn't answer that one.

She sat before the old man thinking. Uncle Pete had become a close companion in her short time at his hotel. Because she was kind to him, listened to his singing and his Bible recitations and his fond talk of Lightning in its heyday, and because she tactfully "mothered" the old hermit a little, he was virtually her slave. He had hired an Indian woman for cook at his hotel and made the woman prepare extra nice food for Rosemary and Bill but he himself stuck to plain fare. He had bought a special saddle horse for Rosemary to ride, if ever she could find the time. He hunted ways of serving her.

All these things impressed the eastern girl, more than she herself realized. And now, suddenly, she wanted to talk to Uncle Pete.

* * *

"He's a crook, Uncle Pete'" she declared. "Harry Boyle is a very dangerous man'"

"Mum?"

"He's a war profiteer and he's very shrewd with it. Too shrewd to get caught. And he—he's trying to upset things here, too."

The old man looked confused. His mind had its limitations, Rosemary knew, gentle and lovable though he was.

"Boyle," he muttered.

"You mustn't pay any attention to me, Uncle Pete. I just had to talk a little. But I'm going in to town, and—" she suddenly became vehement, in a flash of anger, "—and if he thinks he can play dirty with Bill St. Clair and get by with it, he's got another think coming!"

She knew this wouldn't make sense to the old man but she didn't try to explain. "Don't tell Bill where I went, Uncle Pete," she said. "And don't look for me back out here too soon." Then she took her car and started for Option.

The drive in, 12 miles, was past the site of the air field. The flat valley mocked her each time she drove by because there was no action, no construction under way. Bill had re-surveyed it, staked out every house and fence and landing area, seen to every preliminary detail. But it had been impossible to go any further.

Riding alone here, Rosemary began to get her mental bearings again. She had made up her mind to face Harry Boyle once more and try to make him let the building project go through.

For one thing, patriotism demands it," she told herself. "Maybe there's a streak of decency in him somewhere!" But her own common sense denied that hope.

Secondly, she realized, Bill St. Clair's reputation demanded the prompt construction of that air field. She wasn't too sure why, but guarding that reputation was extremely important to her.

"I—it's just because I'm grateful," she tried deluding herself again. "Little Boss is so good to me! He might well have fired me back in Washington, but he didn't. And he didn't, even after I was inefficient out here. And he—he even asked me for a date before I told him I was married. Maybe he—maybe . . . if I—"

She was driving in that unseeing but safe way a person can, under stress. She tucked her lower lip in to control a streak of trembling. She didn't want to cry; seems like she had been an awful cry baby these last few weeks, anyway. Tears dropped in spite of herself. What-might-have-been tears, the bitterest kind of all.

"It's not just because I'm grateful," she whispered in full honesty now. "It's because I love him! And even if I never can let Bill know I love him, I've got to help him in secret, all I can."

That was justification in full, for what she meant to do with Harry Boyle.

* * *

Inquiry at Option's main hotel sent her to the Option Athletic club. This establishment was plainly not for athletes, unless poker, dice and faro can be called strenuous. But the "greeter" there didn't hesitate when he saw a lovely girl asking for one of the customers. Boyle came out rather annoyed but curious, too. Then he saw Rosmary.

"Sa-a-a-ay!" he beamed. "Just look who's here."

"Please come sit in my car," she asked, toneless. "I want to talk to you."

"Sure, baby! But how's about coming in for a drink first, hmmm?"

"No. No thanks, Harry."

"Why not? Sur-r-re! Haven't seen you in days. My own wife!"

"Harry, please!"

"You got the big shot with you? St. Clair?"

"Please come out and talk to me. I'm quite alone."

"What's the matter, sugar? Got something on your mind?" He took her arm and walked across the sidewalk with her, speaking in too honeyed tones. "Listen, you just spill it to papa, whatever it is. You want any little thing done, big Harry will see to it right away, hmmm?"

"I want to talk to you," she repeated, swallowing hard. This was no easy task she had chosen, she realized anew. Then with sheer will power, Rosemary turned to him and forced a smile. "How've you been, Harry?" she forced that tenderness, too.

"Me? Swell, baby. Only—been lonesome. Hmmm? Mighty lonesome papa, me! Had to come way out here on business, just like you did. Shame we couldn't travel together and work together."

He had an arm around her now, sitting in the back seat of her car. For a moment she was rigid. Then again she forced control. She put her head on his shoulder, and exhaled.

"Mmmm, little kid!" he exhorted. "Been meaning to look you up, all right, but you come in first. Couldn't stay away from old Harry, could you?"

He chuckled in deep satisfaction, for here was an unexpected triumph, indeed.
